Govt.: Masks mandatory in public places

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

Following the rise in new COVID cases, the State on Friday issued an order reiterating that masks are mandatory in public places. While enforcement will be done through marshals and police, as recommended by the State's TAC, there will not be a levy of penalty as of now. Karnataka on Friday reported 525 cases and the TPR rose to 2.31%.

Reiterating the guidelines issued by the Chief Secretary on April 25, State Health Commissioner Randeep D. said that only those wearing masks should be allowed to enter closed areas such as shopping malls, restaurants, pubs, cafeteria/hotels, educational institutions, hostels, offices, and factories. "Wearing a mask is mandatory while travelling by personal or public transport vehicles," he said.

The order also reiterated that those with ILI/SARI symptoms and other high risk groups should be tested on priority and isolated at their homes till the test reports arrive.

RS election: BJP holds sway in Karnataka, Cong. in Rajasthan

Vote counting in Haryana and Maharashtra stalled due to complaints

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

Polling for 16 Rajya Sabha seats in four States – Maharashtra, Karnataka, Haryana and Rajasthan – was held on Friday and till late evening results for only two States were declared. In Rajasthan, despite the BJP's efforts to queer the pitch by fielding an independent candidate backed by the party, the Congress won three seats and the BJP one.

In Karnataka, amid cross-voting from two Janata Dal (Secular) legislators, the BJP won three of the four seats and the Congress managed to keep a single seat.

The counting in Haryana and Maharashtra did not begin till 9 p.m. because of complaints and counter-complaints from the opposing camps.

Though these results hold wider political implications in each State, it will have little impact on the Rajya Sabha arithmetic where the BJP will continue to be far ahead of the Congress with 95 members.

In Karnataka, Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman and senior Congress leader Jairam Ramesh won. The other two BJP members to win are Kannada actor Jaggesh and former MLC Lahar Singh Siroya.

In Rajasthan, the winning candidate needed 41 votes. The Congress polled more votes than its strength. The three Congress candidates – Randeep Surjewala got 43 votes, Mukul Wasnik got 42 votes and Pramod Tiwari, the third party nominee, whose election looked precarious, also pulled through with 41 votes. The independent candidate and media personality Subhash Chandra, who was backed by the BJP, lost the elections. Other than the independents, as per reports, BJP MLA Shobha Rani Kushwaha also cross-voted in favour of the Congress.

Larger implication

The Rajya Sabha election results also have a larger political implication for the Congress, especially for Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot, at a time when his former deputy Sachin Pilot is in serious contention to replace him ahead of the 2023 Assembly elections.

The election from the word go was framed as a difficult contest with the Congress going the extra mile to sequester its MLAs. With the emphatic victory, the credit will be heaped at Mr. Gehlot's door. BJP candidate Ghanshyam Tiwari also won the election with 43 votes.

In Maharashtra, polling was held for six Rajya Sabha seats but more than 12 hours after the voting began, the counting could not be started. The BJP approached the Central Election Commission alleging that three MLAs of the Maha Vikas Aghadi did not follow the due procedure. The MVA, meanwhile, has filed a similar complaint against the BJP. Seven candidates are in fray for six seats in the State. The Shiv Sena fielded additional candidate Sanjay Pawar and is short of 16 votes to get him elected.

SC rejects plea for special counselling for NEET-PG

Another round at this stage will create confusion: Bench

KRISHNADAS RAJAGOPAL
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Friday dismissed a plea to direct the government and the Medical Counselling Committee to conduct a "special" stray round of counselling to fill up 1,456 vacant seats from NEET-PG 2021.

A Vacation Bench of Justices M.R. Shah and Aniruddha Bose said another round of counselling at this point of time would affect medical education and create confusion, which, in turn, would affect public health.

The Bench noted that the seats had remained vacant despite eight to nine rounds of counselling. They were hardly any takers for these seats mainly for non-clinical courses. The counselling for NEET PG 2021 has now finally been closed. The 2021 academic year has already been delayed by 1.5 years.

Now, the counselling process for NEET-PG 2022 is about to commence. Another round of 'special stray' counselling for the 1,456 seats may coincide with the upcoming PG 2022 counselling and create confusion. Hence, the court said, the government and authorities had taken a conscious decision to stop the counselling process for PG 2021.

"The Medical Counselling Committee and the Union of India have to adhere to the time schedule for completing the admission process and the current schedule of NEET PG 2021 which is already behind time schedule... not to have another stray round is in the interest of medical education. There cannot be any compromise on the quality of medical education as it affects public health," the order said.

BJP profits from lack of unity in Oppn.

The party bags three seats and Congress one; Janata Dal (S) draws a blank

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

With the lack of unity in the Opposition ranks working in its favour, and the cross voting from the Janata Dal (S) members, the ruling BJP romped home with three of the four Rajya Sabha seats from the State. The other seat went to the Congress. The regional party, which bargained hard to get the fourth seat with the Congress help, drew a blank.

Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, Kannada film actor Jaggesh, and former MLC Lahar Singh Siroya of the BJP, and former Union Minister Jairam Ramesh of the Congress were declared elected after counting of votes on Friday night. Prime Minister Narendra Modi called and congratulated Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on the party's win.

Ms. Sitharaman and Mr. Ramesh secured 46 votes each and Mr. Jaggesh 44 votes. In the keenly contested fourth seat, Mr. Siroya who secured 33 votes was declared winner as Janata Dal (S) candidate D. Kupendra Reddy and Congress candidate Mansoor Ali Khan secured 30 and 23 votes, respectively.

BJP general secretary C.T. Ravi claimed that Mr. Siroya had received two second preference votes from Congress.

Defies whip

Defying the party whip, JD (S) legislator from Gubbi S.R. Srinivas was found to have voted for the BJP's third candidate, while Kolar legislator Srinivas Gowda voted for the Congress. Both had refused to join their party colleagues after JD(S) decided to move legislators to a hotel here, and the party had expected them to cross vote.

However, Mr. Srinivas's vote to the BJP candidate came as a surprise to many in party circles. Incidentally, the JD(S) had witnessed cross-voting from eight of its legislators in favour of the then Congress candidate K.C. Ramamurthy in the Rajya Sabha polls during 2016, resulting in the defeat of the party's official nominee B.M. Farooq.

Earlier in the day, most BJP legislators came together for voting while the JD(S) legislators, led by former Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy, arrived at the Vidhana Soudha in a bus from a star hotel where they were lodged for the past couple of days. A controversy of sorts broke out after the the Congress and the BJP accused JD (S) leader H.D. Revanna of displaying his ballot paper, and complained to the Returning Officer asking his vote to be declared invalid, which was rejected. An appeal to the Election Commission of India was also rejected.

To join Congress

Mr. Srinivas Gowda, soon after casting his vote, said that he had voted for the Congress candidate, defying the party's whip. He also said that he was moving to the Congress soon. By evening, JD(S) workers staged protest in front of Mr. Gowda's house in Kolar.

War takes toll on Surat diamond trade

Many workers left jobless as supply of raw material from Russia stops

A. M. JIGEESH
SURAT/RAJKOT

Mitosh Patel, 38, is a school dropout. He earns about ₹18,000 a month by spending three hours a day cutting and polishing diamonds in a small room beside his house in Rajkot district of Gujarat. But he has not earned anything for the past 100 days due to the ongoing war between Ukraine and Russia.

"I have not got the raw diamond of patli (small) size which I cut and polish, since the war began. Agents from big factories in Surat used to bring the raw material to my house. Some of my relatives and friends who are experts in cutting diamonds earn more than ₹1 lakh a month. They also haven't got any work in the past 100 days," Mr. Patel says.

Mr. Patel is among the roughly five lakh people in rural Gujarat, who are engaged in cutting and polishing of diamonds for nearly two generations. The non-availability of raw material, mostly from Russia, has left them jobless.

"We have seen the 2008 recession which led to a huge decrease in demand. The industry was closed for about 35 days and lakhs of people lost jobs. Now, the situation is different," says Dinesh Navadia, Regional Chairman of Gems and Jewellery Export Promotion Council.

Exploring Ronaldo's part in ten Hag's United rebuild

In crafting the Portuguese superstar's role, the Red Devils manager will have to balance long-term considerations against short-term gains

ASSOCIATED PRESS
AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

When Cristiano Ronaldo's return to Old Trafford was announced last summer – an emotional renewal of a relationship with the club where he won eight major trophies from 2003 to 2009 – several English football experts reckoned that Manchester United was back in business.

Most pre-season predictions had the Red Devils firmly in the top four; some even had them as title contenders. The public relations push was relentless at United, detailing everything about Ronaldo, from his movements in training, his greatest goals, his reclaiming of the "iconic" No. 7 jersey, to the inside story of his goal celebration.

Emotional homecoming

The mood among the fans approached elation, especially because widespread media reports said that Ronaldo's agent, Jorge Mendes, had agreed personal terms with bitter rival Manchester City before United reclaimed its favourite son.

The decision seemed a no-brainer to many – the galvanising return of a club great with guaranteed goals and the swagger of a proven winner.

Ronaldo's numbers in front of goal were still elite. He was the top scorer in Serie A in 2020-21 and had 101 goals and 22 assists in a total of 134 appearances for Juventus before deciding to leave Turin. Furthermore, he added two Italian league crowns and a Coppa Italia to his stacked trophy cabinet – validation, for those who sought it, that Ronaldo hadn't lost his winning touch.

For a United side that had ceded its primacy in the Premier League for the best part of a decade, the arrival of its talisman was both a reminder of the glory days and a sign of hope for the future.

Ronaldo's start was the stuff football fantasies are made of. His first appearance back, against Newcastle – billed as one of the most anticipated occasions in the history of the Premier League – adhered to the script of the heroic return. He scored twice for United after 12 years away, in a 4-1 victory; you could forgive fans for thinking the clock had been turned back.

> I look forward to working with him. Ronaldo is a giant. Because of what he's already shown and I think he's still very ambitious. Of course I'd like to keep him
> ERIK TEN HAG

Mixed reviews

And yet, nine months later, the views about Ronaldo and his move to United are decidedly mixed. The club had another disappointing season, failing to qualify for the Champions League after finishing sixth in the Premier League. It also didn't win a trophy for the fifth straight year – its longest trophy drought since 1983 when a FA Cup triumph had ended a six-year dry spell.

Just as worrying for United supporters was the football itself. The club went through two managers, Ole Gunnar Solskjaer and Ralf Rangnick, last season, with neither succeeding in coaching a coherent style. United's play was often disjointed and error-strewn, too dependent on moments of individual quality in both boxes to be sustainable.

Especially compared with City and Liverpool, the standard-bearers, United's football looked outdated.

What was Ronaldo's role in all of this?

Some experts thought he was a rare bright spark in United's bleak season; they cited his 24 goals (including three penalties) in 38 games (all competitions) as evidence of him pulling his weight. His rate of 0.68 goals per 90 minutes is lower than his career rate of 0.82, but it's still very good, especially given he did this in a season during which he turned 37.

Others, though, disagreed with this analysis, arguing that he was the cause of deeper structural cracks which his goal-scoring wasn't able to paper over – the team seemed to exist as a function to get the best out of him as opposed to working as a unit.

Ronaldo's lack of defensive work and his lacklustre pressing were thought to be costing the team's collective play. His three years at Turin were brought up: there were hints that some of his teammates at Juventus felt he was a 'luxury player', leading to his presence becoming divisive.

The Athletic's correspondent James Horncastle described Ronaldos as "a golden spanner in the works" at United.

The trade-off

"You have this paradox where Ronaldo still comes up with his memorable highlights that generate a lot of reaction," he told the Euro Leagues podcast. "But all they do is show up some of the flaws within the system and the dysfunctionality that's there at United.

"When a manager signs Ronaldo, they have to compromise on their philosophy and design a system around him. If you look at the other players he has eclipsed at United, like Bruno [Fernandes], they are a shadow of who they were," said Horncastle.

And so the appointment of Erik ten Hag, tasked with rebuilding United and returning the club to its once-lofty position, has sharpened the focus on Ronaldo's part in the project.

Ten Hag is a manager in the mould of Pep Guardiola and Jurgen Klopp: structured positional play, high-intensity pressing and counter-pressing are non-negotiables in his philosophy.

These aren't strengths of Ronaldo at 37; he remains an exceptional athlete, but his game in recent years has relied on efficiency of movement and ball-striking, not relentless sprinting. His output has been of such a high standard that managers have shaped their team around this. But with only one year remaining on Ronaldo's contract, that doesn't make sense for ten Hag.

The former Ajax boss needs to focus on the long term; a season of catering primarily to Ronaldo, should ten Hag choose that path, only prolongs the rebuilding process.

Opportunity cost

In addition to deciding whether the Portuguese superstar makes his best starting XI, the manager will also have to assess the opportunity cost of his presence: it could push back the development of a young forward worth investing in by a year.

Will Ronaldo willingly warm the bench if United buys a high-priced striker with potential? Not if his usual response to being substituted is any indication. Considering how poor the dressing room atmosphere reportedly was last season, adding an unhappy Ronaldo to it is an unnerving thought for any manager.

Given his stature, Ronaldo also has the potential to undercut ten Hag's authority, even if he isn't consciously looking to do so. Alex Ferguson, who presided over United's phenomenal success, always held the view that the manager should be the undisputed leader; when a player began to threaten that status during his tenure, Ferguson usually parted ways with him.

For ten Hag, who is building from the ground up, it's imperative that the squad buys into his vision completely. He will need to command his players' respect, which is often easier when the manager's word is perceived to carry more weight than everybody else's. But unless it's Guardiola, Klopp or Zidane, this is unlikely to happen if Ronaldo is in the same dressing room.

Saying the right things

Ten Hag was guarded but positive when asked about Ronaldo during his first press conference. "Of course," he said in reply to a query on whether the striker was a part of his plans. What did he expect from him? "Goals," ten Hag said with a laugh. But when pressed on Ronaldo's role, the Dutchman said, "I will speak to Ronaldo about that before I speak to you."

Ronaldo, for his part, welcomed ten Hag's appointment, recently telling the club's website: "I know he did a fantastic job for Ajax and that he's an experienced coach but we need to give him time and things need to change – the way he wants. We are happy and excited. I wish him the best and let's believe that next year we're going to win trophies."

Ronaldo's role in ten Hag's rebuild will be one of the storylines to keep an eye on next season. "I think to build up good things sometimes you have to destroy a few things," Ronaldo said last season when the side was struggling. Several months later, those words have attained a greater and more personal significance than he perhaps intended when he said them.

> I was happy to be back in a club that really raised my career so it was unbelievable, the feeling when I came back again. I was and still am very happy to be here. I believe that Manchester will be back where they belong

With Knighton following Bolt, can lightning strike twice?

The 18-year-old American is quicker over 200m than the great Jamaican was at his age. But can he stay on course and threaten the sprint world records that until recently looked untouchable?

REUTERS
AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

When Usain Bolt decided that he had had his fill of life in the fast lane, his position as the greatest sprinter of all time was unassailable.

Even the mere thought that somebody someday might approach the times he had set was ludicrous – Bolt, after all, was the perfect storm, a 6'5" physical freak with both a meticulously drilled running technique and the mental ability to command his best under pressure on the biggest occasions. His world records of 9.58s in the 100m and 19.19s in the 200m appeared forever beyond the reach of athletic endeavour.

And yet, within five years of Bolt's retirement, the possibility – even if it's just a sliver at the moment – of at least one of his marks coming under threat has opened up. The cause for this is a teenaged American who not too long back was considering a career in gridiron.

Less than three years ago, Erriyon Knighton was a wide receiver on the American football pitch at Tampa Hillsborough High School in Florida. A hot prospect scouted by several top American colleges with reputed gridiron programmes, Knighton had a path to the NFL mapped out.

But when the pandemic hit and team sports were restricted, the youngster turned his attention to sprinting, a passion he hadn't explored seriously until then.

"I probably would still have been playing football if I would have had that extra year," Knighton told the BBC. "I only started running track in the ninth grade. Before then you could have asked me what 100m was and I wouldn't have known. I knew nothing about track. By the end of that year, I realised that I was kind of separated from the pack and faster than most people."

Knighton wasn't just "faster than most people" he was competing against; he was faster than anybody his age in history, including Bolt himself!

At 17, he toppled Bolt's 200m mark for athletes under 18 at an American Track League meeting, winning the 200m in 20.11, shaving 0.02 seconds off Bolt's 2003 time. He also broke the under-20 200m record that once belonged to the Jamaican (19.93s), finishing in 19.84 at the US Olympic trials ahead of the Tokyo Games. As if that weren't enough, he destroyed his own mark earlier this year at the Baton Rouge meet with a scorching 19.49.

> I get called young every day, I am going to be 24 in 2028, that is in two more Olympics and still kind of young. I think about that all the time. As I grow older I am going to get stronger and faster. I am not the perfect 200m runner, I am still learning as I run it
> KNIGHTON

That performance elevated him to rarefied heights. He wasn't just the fastest teenager of all time over 200m; he was now rubbing shoulders with the best to have ever done it.

The 18-year-old's time blitzed those of sprint legends Carl Lewis and Tommy Smith, and placed him behind only Bolt (19.19), Yohan Blake (19.26) and Michael Johnson (19.32), making him the fourth-fastest man over 200m! What's more, it was also the quickest season opener ever.

"I was kind of shocked," Knighton told NBC. "I knew it was coming, but I didn't know it was coming this early into the season. I also didn't know that it was going to come this early in my career, either. I thought I was going to run 19.4 when I'm like 20 or something, like when I get stronger and older."

'Beamon-esque'

Ato Boldon, former 200m World champion, multiple-time Olympic medallist and current sports analyst with NBC, used an athletics analogy – Bob Beamon breaking the long jump world record by nearly two feet back in 1968 – to capture the magnitude of Knighton's achievement.

"If one junior [Bolt] in history, who is considered the greatest sprinter of all time, has broken 20 [seconds], and now this kid is half a second – which is a lifetime in the sprints – faster, then yes. It's not an exaggeration to say that this is the most Beamon-esque junior performance that we have seen," Boldon said.

In between his record-breaking runs, Knighton qualified for Tokyo and finished fourth in the 200m. Had he managed 19.49 back then, he would have beaten Andre De Grasse (19.62) to gold. "He's very young and talented," de Grasse said. "I definitely look forward to competing against him. He's younger than me, hopefully I can compete with him a little bit longer."

Silver medallist Kenny Bednarek and bronze medallist Noah Lyles, both in their early 20s and considered the future of American athletics themselves, hailed Knighton's Tokyo showing.

"He's going to be dangerous," said Bednarek. "He's got a lot of talent and a lot of things to work on, and he's definitely going to be a monster."

Inevitable comparisons

"I'm very proud of him," said Lyles. "I believe he's right down the road to even more amazing things."

The comparisons with Both are inevitable. Knighton is 6'3" tall and thought to be still growing; his stride length and ability to turn his legs over quickly remind experts of the Jamaican, with Boldon going so far as to say that Knighton has better biomechanics than Bolt had at 18. There's also the nonchalance: Knighton has shown he too can pose for the cameras as he crosses the finish line, with rivals trailing in his wake.

But is all this too much too soon? At the Prefontaine Classic in Eugene, where the World Championships will be staged in July, Knighton was given a reality check in the 100m, as he finished sixth, with a time of 10.14s, in a strong field led by Trayvon Bromell. It's not his favoured event, but if the 18-year-old had any pretensions, they would have been swiftly depressed.

De Grasse and Carl Lewis, among others, have called for a lowering of expectations and urged Knighton to do things his way, without being weighed down by the pressure of chasing a ghost.

De Grasse, who knows a thing or two about pursuing Bolt, albeit unsuccessfully, advised Knighton not to "worry about being the next Usain Bolt". "That puts a lot more pressure when people say that you're the next Usain Bolt," he said. "Just be you, have fun, enjoy the moment."

Lewis also drew attention to the physical side of things. "The biggest thing is not rushing your age," he said. "Instead of running five hard races a year as a high-schooler, you're suddenly running every hard race in a year. He's a phenomenal athlete but he doesn't have to kill himself every week... you are physically not as strong at 18 or 19 as you will be at 21, 22."

Knighton does seem aware of the big picture. He has his eyes set on the World Championships in Eugene (July 15-24) provided he qualifies (June 23-26) at the same venue, but he knows he has plenty of time to leave his mark on the grandest stages.

"I get called young every day, I am going to be 24 in 2028, that is in two more Olympics and still kind of young," Knighton told the BBC. "I think about that all the time. As I grow older I am going to get stronger and faster. I am not the perfect 200m runner, I am still learning as I run it."

KNIGHTON'S PROGRESSION

The 18-year-old is the fastest teenager and the fourth-fastest man over 200m in history. Knighton has shown incredible gains year on year, much like Bolt, who went from 19.75 to 19.30 in a year. The American's best is 0.30 seconds slower than Bolt's world record 19.19, so he will need to continue his incredible progress to threaten it.

2020	20.33s	Satellite Beach (USA)
2021	19.84s	Eugene (USA)

Like Bolt when he was younger, Knighton prefers the 200m, but the American has been getting quicker over 100m as well. Bolt, at 20, had a best of 10.03 seconds, while Knighton clocked 10.04 after turning 18. He also ran a wind-assisted 9.99 seconds (tail wind of +2.7, making his time illegal) last year.

Surfing history's wave

Carissa Moore surfs at the Quiksilver Pro G-Land event – the sixth stop on the 11-event World Surf League (WSL) circuit – at Plengkung beach in Banyuwangi, Indonesia, earlier this month.

The 29-year-old Moore is one of the most decorated competitors in the sport. A five-time WSL world champion, the American from Hawaii won the first-ever Olympic gold in women's short-board surfing at the Tokyo Games last year.

This made her the first surfer in history to win a WSL world title and the Olympic title in the same year.

Currently second in the standings for the 2022 WSL season, Moore is looking to defend her world title and close the gap to Australians Layne Beachley and Stephanie Gilmore, who have each won a record seven crowns. Kelly Slater, another Australian, holds the record for men (11 titles).

The 2022 WSL is the 45th season of all iterations of the tour circuit for professional surfers. It was originally known as International Professional Surfing, which was founded in 1976.

The season will conclude at Lower Trestles, in San Clemente, USA, with the top five men and women going head to head in their respective categories to determine the champion at the WSL Finals.

Chief Minister reviews law and order after protests

Appeals for peace and harmony in State

STAFF REPORTER
BENGALURU

Basavaraj Bommai

Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai chaired a law and order review meeting on Friday evening, after protests by the Muslim community against alleged defamatory comments by a former BJP spokesperson and an expelled leader against Prophet Mohammed turned violent in various parts of the country. In Karnataka, the community held protests in Mysuru, Belagavi and Kalaburagi on Friday, but they passed off without any untoward incident.

"There has been no violence in Karnataka and the situation is under control and peaceful. However, given that violence has broken out in some parts of the country, we have reviewed the law and order situation in the State and specific instructions have been issued to ensure peace. Every police station and district superintendents of police have to talk to community leaders and all those concerned to maintain peace and harmony. Karnataka State Reserve Police has also been put on guard and will be deployed wherever necessary," said Mr. Bommai, appealing to the organisations to maintain peace and harmony in the State.

Earlier in the day, there was tension in Belagavi when an effigy of former BJP spokesperson Nupur Sharma was hung from a wire in the city. It was removed later. SDPI held a demonstration in Mysuru city, demanding the immediate arrest of Ms. Sharma and Naveen Jindal, whom BJP has suspended for their defamatory remarks. They said BJP's action is an "eyewash" aimed at placating Gulf nations. In Kalaburagi too, community members held protests on Friday.

Man arrested for killing partner

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

The Madiwala police on Friday arrested a 26-year-old autorickshaw driver who stabbed his male partner after he objected to his aggressive behaviour during private moments at an apartment in BTM Layout on June 2.

The police recovered the highly decomposed body of Pradeep, 32, a private firm employee at his flat at Cashier Layout on June 2. Pradeep was a male, though neighbours had been under the impression that he was a woman as he used to cross-dress, police said.

The caretaker noticed the foul smell emanating from the locked flat and alerted the police. The police rushed to the spot and shifted the body and took up a probe.

Based on the CCTV footage, the police zeroed in on Rakshith Gowda, from Vijayanagar and arrested him. ACP, Sudheer M. Hedge, who headed the investigation team, said .

The accused confessed that he was one among many partners of Pradeep and had stabbed him to death over a trivial row. KEEP THE SUN'S GLOW FROM DIMMING YOURS WITH ALMONDS NATURALLY.

Your natural shield from the shine

Every working woman knows that stepping out into the great outdoors invariably means a game of hide-and-seek with the sun. Whether it's going to work, grocery shopping, or dropping your kids off at school, the sun is always glaring down at us, and its harsh UVB rays seem impossible to escape. So, is there any way to create resistance from within against them? Fortunately, there is and it's a tasty one – almonds!

A simple addition of this delicious nut to your go-to ways of shielding yourself from the sun can work wonders to enhance protection from harmful radiation. A recent study conducted by the University of California, Los Angeles has discovered that a daily snack of almonds (42 grams) over 12 weeks improved MED – a measure of UVB resistance – in young Asian women by about 20%. The results suggest that including almonds in the diet may help support the skin's internal defences against UVB light."

Face the sun with confidence

As women who are conscious of how the sun can damage our skin, we go to great measures to protect ourselves; be it by wearing protective layers of clothing or our elaborate skin care routines, we go all the way to ensure our skin doesn't lose its radiance. Traditionally, almonds have been known to provide a range of beauty benefits and grabbing a bunch of almonds on top of your daily skincare regime will give your skin the extra boost it needs from within.

In light of the previously mentioned study by the University of California, Los Angeles, Sheela Krishnaswamy, Nutrition and Wellness Consultant, commented, "Eating almonds regularly for a variety of health benefits ranging from heart health to skin is inbuilt in our traditions. This is the first of its kind research that highlights the positive impact of regular almond consumption in increasing the skin's resistance to UVB light, in turn preventing the harmful effects of prolonged sun exposure, which is a very promising outcome. Women across India, should increase their almond intake and be sure to eat a handful every day to achieve healthier skin."

A step towards smart skincare

With increasing awareness also comes a rise in sources of advice. So, we often find ourselves caught between our grandmothers' wisdom and the new-age experts. It becomes tough to understand whose ways will work the best to keep the youthful glow of our skin intact when we are outside.

Almonds act as a supplementary natural solution in enabling our skin to combat harmful radiation. It supports your already well thought out routine and supports your skin's internal defences against UVB light." Not only are they a healthy snack, but are also tasty and filling. Renowned Medical Director and Cosmetologist, Dr. Geetika Mittal Gupta, says, "Most Indian women prefer resorting to application-based solutions to protect their skin from being exposed to UVB. For years now, I have been recommending almonds as a natural healthy snack for better skin health. Besides this, almonds also contain healthy fats and vitamin E (alpha-tocopherol) that may benefit skin health. So, I strongly suggest all Indian women to add a handful of almonds to their diet every day."

So, by munching on a few almonds daily, give yourself a natural umbrella against UVB rays while getting the nourishment you deserve.

Staff crunch, non-induction of new buses hit operational efficiency of BMTC services

Increasing traffic congestion over the years and poor road conditions have also had an impact

SUCHITH KIDIYOOR
BENGALURU

The operational efficiency of city buses operated by the Bangalore Metropolitan Transport Corporation (BMTC) has dropped significantly. The staff shortage and non-induction of new buses have impacted city bus services. In the pre-COVID-19 times, each bus operated by the corporation would cover a distance of close to 200 km per day, which has now come down to around 170 km, BMTC sources said. Increasing traffic congestion over the years and poor road conditions have also impacted services.

While the ridership has not gone back to the pre-pandemic levels, the BMTC services are also getting thinner. Presently, BMTC is running a schedule of 5,600 services which used to be 6,200 services during pre-COVID-19 times. Expectedly, the ridership is hovering around an average of 26-27 lakh passengers a day, down from an average of 35 lakh passengers per day.

A BMTC official said, "We are providing services by better utilization of existing staff. Owing to various factors, the recruitment of drivers and conductors did not happen for close to five years. In the last two years, close to 2,500 staff were retired, transferred to other corporations, or left the job. Some of them died. During peak hours, we are running the maximum number of buses possible, and during non-peak hours, we have reduced our services."

Non induction of new buses and non-recruiting new staff goes against the interest of those relying on city buses for commuting. "Earlier, we were running buses for 14 to 16 hours daily but this has reduced. Increased operations would help in getting more ridership and help people from shifting from private mode of transport to public transport," said the official.

'Will hire drivers on contractual basis'

N.S. Nandiesha Reddy, chairman, BMTC, told The Hindu that due to its poor financial condition, the corporation will not go in for fresh recruitment of drivers and conductors. Instead, it is contemplating hiring drivers and conductors on a contractual basis for three to four years. "A committee of officials is studying the feasibility of hiring staff on a contractual basis. Based on their recommendation, further decisions will be taken on hiring," he said.

Many activists have criticized the State government for not giving priority to BMTC. "BMTC provides lifeline services for the city. It had given a great service by providing buses to essential service workers when the pandemic was at its peak. The State government must support the BMTC in the induction of new buses and recruitment of new staff. A fraction of the money spent on Namma Metro and Suburban Rail, if spent on the BMTC, would help in bringing big changes in the city's transport system. Providing a robust city bus service, making it reliable and affordable would help citizens in a big way," said Srinivas Alavilli, Head, Civic Participation, Janaagraha Centre for Citizenship and Democracy.

KSRTC too facing staff crunch

The Karnataka State Road Transport Corporation (KSRTC) too is facing a shortage of drivers. Recently, the KSRTC had taken a decision to hire retired drivers of the corporation who are fit to drive on a contractual basis. However, only around 40 drivers showed an interest in joining the KSRTC on a contractual basis.

An official of the corporation said that owing to the staff shortage, the bus fleet could not be utilized to its fullest capacity. Two years ago, the KSRTC was operating 8,200 schedules of services but now operates close to 7,200 schedules. "We are facing a shortage of 3,200 drivers and conductors. Prior to the outbreak of the pandemic, efforts were made to recruit staff but these were stalled owing to financial burden," said an official. In the last two years, more than 1,000 bus crew of the KSRTC were retired from services.

Drivers told to follow rules

STAFF REPORTER
BENGALURU

Following complaints from passengers that some of the city bus drivers do not follow traffic rules while driving, chief operational manager of BMTC has instructed officials to make sure that drivers follow rules.

Drivers have been instructed not to honk near schools, not use mobile phones while driving and make sure that passenger information providing bus route details are functional at all times. Instructions have been given to display stickers on reserving seats for women, the elderly and the differently-abled.

The river has no fear of memories: Girish Karnad's last words

BIC is hosting a nine-part podcast on conversations with the late playwright

K.V. ADITYA BHARDWAJ
BENGALURU

Three years after his death, playwright Girish Karnad's voice is set to come alive again. Bangalore International Centre (BIC) is hosting a nine-part podcast titled 'The River has no fear of Memories' of the extensive conversations Arshia Sattar had with Girish Karnad for a week in June, 2019, cut short by his death on June 10, 2019. The Jnanpith awardee in the conversations looks back on his life, work, and concerns.

Jnanapith awardee, playwright, actor and director Girish Karnad. • MONICA KUKARNI

"The conversations were first conceived as a way for Girish Karnad to talk about all the things he had not mentioned in his memoir, This Life at Play, which is about the first half of his life. But once we started talking, the conversations took their own path," said Arshia Sattar. "The podcast episodes have distilled a freewheeling conversation held over a week into broader themes - playwriting, Kannada literature, existentialism, modern Indian theatre - themes that Girish Karnad would return to over and over again in that week when we spoke. After a week's conversation, we decided to take a break on June 8 and continue our conversation after two weeks. But he passed away on June 10," she said.

The podcast is held together by Arshia Sattar and her colleague in the project Anmol Tikoo, who situate the comments of the thespian and locate the themes in his works by interspersing them with readings from his plays by members of the city's theatre community.

For instance, when Girish Karnad talks about Bhakti, the podcast has a reading from Flowers about a priest who is questioning his faith in God or a reading of the playwright's prologue from Nagamandala, when Girish Karnad talks of the struggle with his plays. M.D. Pallavi and Konark Reddy have composed the music for the show and have recreated the famous rangageete Neerina Mele Chitra from Karnad's Hayavadana, the song which also gives the podcast its title - The River has no fear of Memories.

The podcast includes an episode in which Vivek Shanbhag speaks to Girish Karnad on Kannada literature and a two-part episode where Shanta Gokhale and Sunil Shanbagh, both from Mumbai, respond to Karnad's memories and analyses of Indian theatre and present an appreciation of his work in the context of the Indian theatre in general.

The first episode of the podcast streamed on Friday and the remaining eight will be streamed every Friday over the next two months.

Neighbour's domestic help kingpin in kidnap case

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

A domestic help working at a neighbour's house has emerged as the kingpin in the kidnap of 11-year-old boy Dhammudeep for ransom in Hennur. The police arrested domestic help Mangitha on Friday.

Bhimashankar Guled, DCP, East Division, said that Mangitha is pregnant and desperate for money for medical expenses.

"She had seen that the neighbour's family loved their son Dhammudeep very much and provided him with all material comforts. She presumed the family was wealthy. However, Dhammudeep's father Subhash works as a driver with Bengaluru Metropolitan Transport Corporation and was not wealthy," the officer said. Mangitha hatched a plan to kidnap Dhammudeep and roped in her friend Durgadevi, offering her ₹10 lakh to execute the plan. As per the plan, Mangitha introduced Dhammudeep to Durgadevi, who lured him with swimming coaching and took him to a farmhouse in Jigani where her brother-in-law is a security guard working as caretaker. After the police rescued the boy, they arrested the farmhouse's caretaker Gaurav Singh and Durgadevi. When the police counselled the boy, he revealed that it was Mangitha who introduced him to Durgadevi, leading to her arrest, officials said.

The trio have been taken into custody for questioning and further investigations are on.

It pays to have a valuer

Ascertaining technical soundness, and arriving at fair market value of the property are important. By R.P. DESHPANDE

A large majority of people who decide to buy a property, after collecting photocopies/scanned copies of documents, rush to an advocate to get a legal report to ascertain whether the seller has legal title to the property and is competent to sell it Seldom buyers consult a chartered engineer/valuer to seek technical evaluation of the property. In reality, the technical evaluation is as important as title verification.

Even after title clearance is obtained by an expert property advocate, if you are missing the technical evaluation conducted by a seasoned engineer/valuer, you would be inviting many risks such as:

Wrong identification of the property leading to buying a property of not your choice.

Constructing your dream home on somebody's site - leading to disputes, litigations, and chances of losing the dream home.

Selecting a property that is not approved by the competent authorities.

Lesser site area, thus losing out heavily on the price of the property.

Actual built-up area could be much less than the recorded area in the document.

Actual specifications could be of lower quality compared to promised specifications. Construction quality could be of poor quality.

> The valuer will issue a detailed inspection report along with a fair market value assessment

Paying a higher installment compared to the stage of construction, could lead to long delays, escalation in costs, the builder not completing the project, etc.

Deviation from the approved plan leading to even demolition of the unit.

What is technical evaluation?

The technical evaluation starts with identifying the property in question, verifying documents such as Sale Deed, Khata Extract, Approved Layout Plan, Approved Construction Plan, and matching the property on the ground (physical verification) by a chartered engineer/valuer.

In fact, the homework for the chartered engineer/valuer starts much before the site visit. He/she will evaluate the property by verifying the documents such as:

Layout Plan and Commencement Letter issued by the local competent authority

Site Release order issued by the local competent authority

Land development completion certificate by the local competent authority

Latest Khata certificate and extract with measurements of land and the built-up area

Construction Plan (including Floor Plan) approved by the local licensing authority along with commencement certificate

Working plan (Floor Plan) of the unit, with measurements

Construction details such as type of construction and specifications

Occupancy certificate issued by the local competent authority

Guidance value as fixed by the government authorities

On satisfactory verification of the documents, the chartered engineer/valuer visits the property and conducts a thorough inspection, identifies the property, notes down many aspects which influence the value of the property such as the approach roads to the property, neighbourhood, amenities provided (electricity, water, sewage connections), common facilities (clubhouse, swimming pool, indoor games, etc.), distance from market areas, banks, educational institutions, religious places, etc.

A detailed inspection for the particular property follows. For an apartment, the engineer/valuer will verify the construction materials used, workmanship, present construction progress and makes a comparative analysis with the specifications as per the sale agreement, the approved plan and construction on the ground (as per actual construction).

The engineer will take physical measurements of the apartment, attached balconies, terraces, etc., give thrust in measuring the carpet area, built-up area, and super built-up area and compare the same with the sale agreement and the approved plan.

The engineer will be able to measure the carpet area, and built-up area with the help of above said documents and by actual measurements. To arrive at super built-up area, he needs the area statement of common areas and the proportionate area loaded to the particular apartment, issued by the builder/developer.

The engineer will issue a detailed inspection report along with a fair market value assessment, photographs of the apartment complex, photos of interiors of the apartment, a table of actual measurements vs the approved plan with deviation analysis, and fair market value of the apartment.

Selling price

Since the selling price is determined as per sital area (in case of vacant sites), built-up area (individual buildings) and for apartments, it is fixed on the super built-up area, one can understand how crucial the measurements are.

Unfortunately, a majority of the builders won't provide the area statement of common areas and the proportionate area loaded to the particular apartment, and arbitrarily add 50-100 sq. ft. more area than actual calculations.

If the purchaser, before booking the apartment, insists the builder may give the said common area statement with which the engineer can arrive at the proper super built-up area.

Once the booking is done, it is seen that seldom the builder has obliged to provide the said common area statement. Let us analyse the effect of an extra 50 sq. ft. (which is arbitrarily added, which is an addition to the actual calculations) loaded to an apartment of say 1,200 sq. ft. measurement.

If the selling price is ₹ 6,000/- per sq. ft., you will stand to lose ₹3,00,000 on account of 50 sq. ft., which is physically not there on the ground.

On ₹ 300,000 extra money you paid, during the registration of sale deed, you end up paying extra stamp duty and registration cost, which amounts to ₹20,000 approximately.

On the extra 50 sq. ft., you continue to pay building maintenance charges for the life of the building (50 years+).

While getting the khata transferred after purchasing you will end up paying an extra khata transfer fee of ₹400.

And the worst part is you go on paying property tax for the next 50 years of the life of the apartment, which may run into lakhs of rupees.

Worth it

By opting for a technical evaluation, not only the intending purchaser gets to know the technical soundness, fair market value of the property, and the actual sital area, built-up and the super built-up area, he/she stands to save a few lakhs of rupees, as explained above. The technical evaluation may cost ₹10,000 to ₹20,000 depending on the property.

In view of the above, it is strongly advisable to opt for a technical evaluation of the property, conducted by a seasoned chartered engineer/valuer.

'Expected move'

The RBI's announcement of an increase in the policy rate by 50 basis points (bps) is along expected lines in the backdrop of persistent inflation, global headwinds, and macroeconomic situation, says Samantak Das, Chief Economist, and Head - Research and REIS, India, JLL.

The prolonged rise in inflation which touched 7.8% in April 2022 has been due to supply chain disruptions created by the global geopolitical situation. RBI has been decisive in its intent to mitigate the impact of inflation on economic growth by increasing the policy rates and gradual withdrawal of liquidity.

The rise in policy rate is expected to act more as a sentiment disruptor for the home buyers given that mortgage rates are likely to inch up. However, the impact of the rate hike on home loan EMIs is unlikely to be significant.

Surge in cases: 'Next few weeks crucial'

Karnataka sees 525 new cases; 95% in Bengaluru

AFSHAN YASMEEN
BENGALURU

Karnataka, that has been consistently maintaining a Test Positivity Rate (TPR) of less than 1% since mid-March, is seeing a slight rise in this vital parameter in the last ten days. The State's daily TPR rose from 0.74% on May 24 to 2.31% on June 10.

As many as 4,657 positive cases have been reported since May 24. Of these, as many as 1,950 cases have been reported in the last five days alone.

From 471 cases on Thursday, the State reported 525 cases on Friday. Overall, 95% of the total cases are from Bengaluru Urban alone.

Although the State's COVID-19 Technical Advisory Committee (TAC) that met on June 6 had said that the situation is still fluctuating, the number of new cases have nearly doubled since then - from 230 on June 6 to 525 on June 10.

State Health Commissioner Randeep D said although the rise is gradual, like in the third wave, the doubling rate is not yet alarming. "We will have to wait and watch if there is any rise in hospitalisation, clustering of cases or if any target groups such as children or senior citizens are getting infected," he said.

Next three weeks crucial

COVID-19 experts in the State attributed the current rise in TPR to local fluctuations. Asserting that the next three weeks are crucial, experts said the doubling rate in this period will decide whether the next wave has begun in the State. C.N. Manjunath, member of the State's Clinical Experts Committee, said the next two-three weeks are crucial. "With the Omicron BA.2 variant still the dominant one in Karnataka, we will have to wait for another two-three weeks before we can conclude that this is the onset of the fourth wave," he said. Pointing out that those who are yet to take the precaution dose and unvaccinated children will be the most vulnerable now, Dr. Manjunath said: "Many children are getting infected. In our hospital in the last one month, over 25 children have been found to be positive for COVID-19 when they were tested before surgeries."

TAC member V. Ravi, who also heads the State's SARS-CoV-2 Genomic Surveillance Committee, said the current rise in cases is a small spurt being seen three months after the previous outbreak (third wave). "We will know whether this is another wave or not by the end of next two-three weeks," he said.

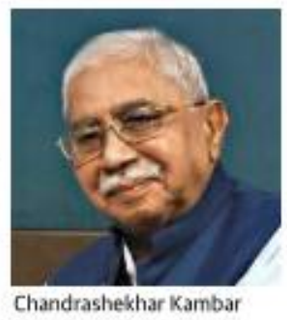
He said it is prudent at this juncture for people to behave responsibly. "Most importantly, those who develop symptoms should get tested and those who are yet to take the precaution dose should take it without any further delay," he said.

However, TAC member Giridhar R. Babu, who also heads Lifecourse Epidemiology at Indian Institute of Public Health in Bengaluru, said it was time we stopped numbering the waves.

"Whenever there is a rise in cases, it needs to be tracked if it is resulting in increased hospitalisation or deaths. It is important to initiate concerted actions by analysing the epidemiological data from the field correlating with sub-lineages. In the meantime, enhancing booster coverage is imperative," Dr. Babu asserted.

Chandrashekhar Kambar complains of identity theft

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU



Chandrashekhar Kambar

The South cybercrime police are on the lookout for a man who, posing as Jnanpith awardee Chandrashekhar Kambar, the president of Sahitya Akademi, attempted to take money from his friends on social media.

Based on the complaint, the police have registered a case on Friday charging the unknown person under various sections of the Information Technology Act, 2000, and also under cheating and impersonation.

In his complaint, Mr. Kambar said that the accused had copied his name and photograph to send messages to his friend list using a mobile number. The accused was asking for financial help from Kambar's friends and also asking them to buy Amazon gift vouchers.

This has caused major embrrassment to him as his name was misused, he said. This is not the first time it was happening either, as earlier, his email account had been hacked and mails were sent to his contact list.

The police are now trying to track down the accused through the phone number used.

Use khadi coat, NMC advises doctors across Karnataka

KVIC has been providing financial assistance to institutions and individuals for development of khadi and village industries and generating employment for millions in rural areas. • FILE PHOTO

JAYANTH R.
BENGALURU

In a move aimed to promote khadi, doctors of all medical colleges, hospitals and medical institutions across the State have been advised to opt for white coats made of the handspun material by the National Medical Commission (NMC).

The advisory from the NMC also asks hospitals and medical colleges to use khadi for other essentials, including bedsheets, pillow covers, aprons, curtains, and patients' gowns. Most hospitals use cotton, but it is often machine-spun.

K. Ravi, director of Victoria Hospital, Bengaluru, told The Hindu, "We are already using various khadi products in our hospital. These products are really healthy. After the NMC advisory, we will more effectively implement this in all sections."

The Khadi and Village Industries Commission (KVIC), a statutory establishment under Ministry of Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises, has specially designed products for medical institutions and professionals, including soaps, handwash, phenyl and so on, besides clothes like coats, apron, etc. These products are not only beneficial for health, but are also eco-friendly, stated the advisory from NMC.

The advisory further explained that KVIC has been providing financial assistance to institutions and individuals for development and operation of khadi and village industries and generating employment for millions of people in rural areas.

Mangaluru police dog named after movie

Kannada film Charlie 777 captures the relationship between the owner and the dog

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
MANGALURU

Inspired by the newly released Kannada film Charlie 777 on the relationship between a man and an animal, the Mangaluru city police have named the new member of their dog squad 'Charlie'.

The name was proposed after some city police personnel, including handlers of the four dogs in the squad, saw the movie at the premier show on Thursday.

"The film has captured the relationship between the owner and the pet dog, and the dog and its handler well," said Police Commissioner N. Shashi Kumar, who was among the personnel who saw the movie.

"After watching the film, the personnel suggested 'Charlie' as the name for the fifth member of the squad, and I agreed," he said.

The three-month-old female labrador retriever was given the name at a simple naming ceremony at the dog squad kennel on the premises of the office of Police Commissioner on Friday. Deputy Commissioner of Police Channaveerappa Hadapad and Assistant Commissioner of Police Murugeppa Upase participated in event.

Dog squad

Charlie was recently brought from a kennel in Bantwal. It joins four others – Geeta, Rani, Ruby and Bubli – of the city police dog squad. The senior-most 11-year-old Geeta, Rani, and Charlie, all labradors, will be used for explosive detection, while Bubli and Ruby are for crime detection.

Training period

Charlie will shortly be sent, along with handler Harish and assistant handler Vikram, to Bengaluru City Armed Reserve (South) for a six-month training.

Mr. Hadapad and Mr. Upase said the city police was spending ₹300 per day towards food for each of the five dogs.

The health of these dogs are regularly monitored.

Each dog is insured by paying an annual premium of ₹1,300, according to Mr. Upase.

Storage in Cauvery basin dams above 50% of gross capacity

Pre-monsoon showers coupled with cyclone-induced rains in May helped

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
MYSURU

The south west monsoon is yet to set in fully and gain vigour in the catchment area of the Cauvery, but the storage levels in the major reservoirs are above 50 per cent of their gross capacity.

This is mainly due to the pre-monsoon showers coupled with cyclone-induced rains in May as a result of which the storage level in the dams during the current season is comfortable.

The gross storage capacity of the Krishnaraja Sagar (KRS) reservoir near Mysuru is 49.45 thousand million cubic ft (tmc ft) against which the actual storage as on June 10 (Friday) was 27.40 tmc ft, according to Karnataka State Natural Disaster Monitoring Centre (KSNDMC).

This is for the first time in recent years that the actual storage is almost 55 per cent of the gross storage as early as in the second week of June. In contrast the storage during the same day last year was 12.49 tmc ft while in 2020 it was 17.45 tmc ft.

The water level in the reservoir was 105.44 feet against the Full Reservoir Level (FRL) of 124.80 feet. In 2021 it was 83.62 feet; and 92.45 feet in 2020.

Water storage across dams in Cauvery basin

Dams	Max level	Level on June 10	Storage on June 10 (in tmcft)
KRS	124.80 ft	105.40 ft	27.40 (49.45)
Hemavati	2,922 ft	2,908.23 ft	23.13 (37.10)
Kabini	2,284 ft	2,261.48 ft	7.94 (19.52)
Harangi	2,859 ft	2,850.62 ft	6.09 (8.50)

Gross storage capacity across the four dams: 114.57 tmcft
Available storage across the four dams on June10: 64.55 tmcft

*Figures in brackets represent the gross storage capacity of each dam. Source: KSNDMC

A view of the KRS across the Cauvery near Mysuru. •M.A. SRIRAM

The reservoir saw a surge in flow during the third and last week of May and though it has ebbed since, the authorities expect the onset of monsoon would ensure adequate in flow in the coming days.

At Hemavathi dam near Gorur in Hassan district, the actual storage this year is at 62 per cent of the gross capacity. Against the gross storage capacity of 37.10 tmc ft, the dam as on June 10 had 23.13 tmc ft of water. The storage during the same period last year was 9.56 tmc ft.

Harangi near Kushalnagar has a gross storage capacity of 8.50 tmc ft against which the quantum of water available as on June 10 was 6.09 tmc ft which is 72 per cent of the actual storage capacity. Last year the available quantum was only 2.96 tmc ft, as per the KSNDMC records.

It is only in Kabini that the storage was below 50 per cent of the capacity. Against the gross storage capacity of 19.52 tmc ft, the quantum of water available as on June 10 was 7.94 tmc ft which is 41 per cent of the storage capacity.

The cumulative gross storage capacity across the four dams in the Cauvery basin is 114.57 tmc ft against which the actual storage as on June 10 was 64.55 tmc ft. This is 56 per cent of the gross storage capacity, according to KSNDMC.

The rainfall pattern being monitored by KSNDMC indicates that the monsoon is yet to gain traction or vigour in the catchment areas of the Cauvery basin comprising Kodagu, Chikkamagaluru and Hassan.

The cumulative rainfall from June 1 to 10 in these districts has been 34.7 mm as against a normal of 73.8 mm. Kodagu from where the Cauvery originates, has received 20.6 mm of rains between June 1 and 10 against a normal of 102.1 mm which is 80 per cent below normal.

Loudspeakers: HC seeks clarification on licence

Court hearing pleas on noise pollution

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

The High Court of Karnataka on Friday directed the State government to clarify under which provision of the law permanent licences/permissions were given to religious institutions and places of worships for using loudspeakers in perpetuity.

A division bench comprising Chief Justice Ritu Raj Awasthi and Justice Ashok S. Kinagi issued the directions after it was complained to the court that the government has been issuing permanent licences to religious institutions even though there is no such provision in the Noise Pollution (Regulation and Control) Rules, 2000.

Petitions said the government has been issuing permanent licences though there is no provision in the rules. •FILE PHOTO

Types of pollution

The bench was hearing PIL petitions complaining about different types of noise pollutions, including use of loudspeakers by religious institutions, particularly mosques, in violation of the rules. When a government advocate told the bench that no permanent licence is being granted for using loudspeakers, advocate Sridhar Prabhu, representing petitioners in a PIL petition, said grant of permanent licence is evident from the statement of objections filed on behalf of some of the mosques in their response filed to the petitions.

At this juncture, P. Usman, representing some of the mosques, said they were told to secure licence from the authorities concerned in the earlier round of litigations. And following this, they had applied for licence before the designated authority of the police department, which had ultimately granted them licences, copies of which were produced before the court.

While advocate Sridhar Prabhu, representing petitioners in a PIL petition, contended that law does not provide for grant of permanent licence for use of loudspeakers, P. Usman, representing some of the mosques, defended that the grant of such licences is under Rule 5 of the 2005 Rules.

Status report

Following the claims and the counter-claims on the issue, the Bench directed the government to clarify the position while also directing it to submit a status report on the action taken to check noise pollution caused by other reasons such as illegal amplification or modification of vehicle silencers, by night clubs, etc., as was directed in November last year.

Demand for English-medium classes in govt. schools

SHANKAR BENNUR
MYSURU

Demand for English-medium classes in government-run schools is surging even as the office of the Deputy Director of Public Instruction (DDPI) in Mysuru has sought the nod of the Department of Public Instruction (DPI), Bengaluru, to increase the number of sections to accommodate an increase in students. Mysuru district has 12 Karnataka Public Schools (KPS) that offer English-medium classes from LKG to class 12.

The permitted intake is 35 but the number of applications is over 80 in almost all the schools. In some cases, the number of applications have crossed 100. As authorities are unable to meet the demand, they are facing a demand to increase the number of seats.

Deputy Director of Public Instruction Ramachandra Raje Urs told The Hindu that the issue has been brought to the notice of the head office in Bengaluru. The schools have sought permission to increase intake to accommodate all the applicants.

The demand for admissions is exceptionally high at KPS in Ravandur in Periyapatna taluk; Hebbal in K.R. Nagar taluk; Siddaramanahundi and Yelwal in Mysuru taluk. Siddaramanahundi is the birthplace of former Chief Minister Siddaramaiah. "Such is the demand that there are cases of authorities in some KPS are arranging resources on their own to run LKG and UKG classes. Another reason for the rising demand is that the children can complete their kindergarten, primary, higher primary, high school and PU education in one campus," he said.

Demand for admission in government primary and high schools in the district is also surging. Nearly 3 lakh admissions have been completed since May 16. "The admissions will go on till June 30. No student will be denied admission. Another 50,000 admissions are expected by the end of June," Mr. Urs said.

PSI booked for sexually harassing family members, including minor

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

The JC Nagar police have booked a police sub inspector for allegedly sexually abusing his wife, sister-in-law and his 13-year-old minor step daughter.

The PSI has been booked under the POCSO Act, 2012, too.

Abortion

His wife, the complainant, said that the accused used to harass her and forced her to do unnatural sexual acts after forcing her to watch pornographic videos. The accused continued to treat her inhumanly while she was pregnant, due to which she had to have an abortion, she had alleged.

Second marriage

The complainant said that it was her second marriage and she had two minor daughters from her fist husband and they were staying with him. The accused did not even spare the 13-year-old step daughter and sexually harassed her many times. He would threaten the family members that he would kill everyone and make it look like suicide. Fearing his position and contacts, the family members continued to suffer until on May 26, the accused again assaulted the minor daughter.

Unable to bear the harassment to her child, the mother approached an advocate and members of a human rights group and with their help, filed a complaint.

False promises

The complainant said that she had met the accused when she went to file a complaint against her first husband in Shivaji Nagar police station. The accused officer had assured her of a good life and said he would take care of the children and educate them. After divorcing her first husband, the victim married the accused and moved to his house, despite severe objections from her family, she said.

The keenly fought Rajya Sabha elections in Karnataka have seen the BJP win three seats and the Congress one, while the JD(S) has drawn a blank. The tussle over the fourth seat has shown the deeper political undercurrents, possibly a precursor to the 2023 Assembly polls

With RS polls, Congress signals a clear distance with JD(S)

Siddaramaiah is said to have turned down high command's suggestion of alliance

NAGESH PRABHU
BENGALURU

The principal Opposition Congress, which appealed to Janata Dal (Secular) legislators to cast their "conscience" vote in favour of the party's second candidate, Mansoor Ali Khan, suffered an embarrassment by enabling the victory of the ruling BJP's Lahar Singh Siroya in the the Rajya Sabha elections on Friday.

The Congress, however, seems to have utilised the Rajya Sabha polls as a means to maintain a clear distance from the JD(S) ahead of the next year's Legislative Assembly elections. Leaders of the Congress and the JD(S), who were involved in backdoor talks initially, appeared unable to strike an alliance largely owing to a clash of ego between former Chief Ministers Siddaramaiah (Congress) and H.D. Kumaraswamy (JD-S). In the run-up to the elections, both the leaders had indulged in verbal confrontation.

However, in a bid to form an alliance, Leader of the Opposition in the Rajya Sabha M. Mallikarjun Kharge, apparently, rushed to Delhi by skipping the first day of the party's Chintana Shibira in Bengaluru to convince the Congress high command about the necessity of forming an alliance to defeat the BJP in the contest for the fourth seat.

Congress candidate Jairam Ramesh being greeted by Mansoor Ali Khan during the Rajya Sabha elections at the Vidhana Soudha in Bengaluru on Friday. • K. MURALI KUMAR

Mr. Siddaramaiah, who is also the Congress Legislature Party leader, knowing well the shortage of required numbers for the victory, reportedly opposed the high command's suggestion on alliance, and ensured his sway in fielding the second candidate.

The party nominated the former Union Minister Jairam Rameh as its first candidate. Mansoor Ali Khan, son of the former Union Minister K. Rahman Khan, was fielded with an aim to boost the party's pro-Muslim image and demonstrate its resolve to protect the community against the BJP's "communal agenda".

Finally, the Congress' expectation of cross-voting by a good number of disgruntled BJP and JD(S) MLAs did not work, as only one JD(S) MLA, Srinivas Gowda, indulged in cross-voting in the party's favour. Independent MLA Sharath Bache Gowda also voted for the party.

But the defeat of Mr. Khan may not go down well with the Muslim community. About a decade ago, in the Legislative Council elections, Iqbal Ansari Saradagi of Kalaburagi (Congress) and loyalist of Mr. Kharge had lost to Byrathi Suresh, Independent, owing to cross-voting. Muslim leaders had then submitted a petition to the then KPCC chief G. Parameshwara seeking an explanation for the defeat.

Not lost entirely

Mr. Siddaramaiah, who has always been calling JD(S) the "B team" of the BJP, has turned down ties with the party in an attempt to consolidate the Congress' votes largely in the Old Mysore belt. By ensuring that one MLA belonging to the Vokkaliga community stays away from the JD(S), the Congress seems to have not lost entirely. Many in the party believe that it has conveyed the message that all is not well in the JD(S) leadership and the regional party was also responsible for the victory of Mr. Siroya.

Battle lines now drawn between Opposition parties

HDK says results will signal 'a new chapter' on Karnataka's political map

SHARATH S. SRIVATSA
BENGALURU

As against a strong perception in the political circle over a possible large-scale cross-voting from Janata Dal (Secular) legislators that could have destabilised the party ahead of the 2023 Assembly elections, the Rajya Sabha elections seem to have provided some relief as the party managed to retain its flock, barring two who defied the party whip.

The fact that Congress leaders', including Leader of the Opposition Siddaramaiah, alleged attempt to split the JD(S) using the elections did not meet the expectation itself sends out a signal that the party and the leadership remained stable, which is very important in the election year, party sources claimed. Party's legislator from Kolar Srinivas Gowda voted for the Congress, while Gubbi legislator S.R. Srinivas voted for the BJP.

Signal to Muslims?

The JD(S), which has been in

talks with some Muslim legislators and also appealing to the larger Muslim population to win them back electorally, also calculates that the minority community will now see the defeat of Mansoor Ali Khan as a "betrayal" by the Congress since it fielded him despite not having numbers. The fact that the strategy of the Congress local leaders – to fight the election despite several rounds of backroom talks – has helped the BJP win its third seat will be another issue the JD(S) will take up. An easy seat for a combined Opposition professing secular ideology had been handed to the BJP on a platter, sources said. They believe that Mr. Siddaramaiah "may have succeeded now, but will pay for it in the long run".

Though senior party legislators G.T. Deve Gowda, K.M. Shivalinge Gowda, and A.T. Ramaswamy have distanced themselves from the party leadership and are speculated to leave at the end of this Assembly's term, they voted in favour of the JD(S), and this points at the changing ground realities in politics, sources said. Despite losing one vote, loyalty to the party had been shown by all and that augurs well ahead of the Assembly elections, sources said.

The former Chief Minister and JD (S) leader H.D. Kumaraswamy, who is learnt to have taken the defeat seriously, said there would be "a new chapter from now on" on the political map of Karnataka, indicating his intentions to fight back the Congress vigorously.

Ungrateful, says DKS

Responding to the allegations of the JD(S), KPCC president D.K. Shivakumar said the regional party was "ungrateful", considering how in the past the Congress had helped it. The party had offered to support if an Independent candidate was fielded, which the JD(S) had refused, he said.

"The Congress alone is capable of stopping the BJP in Karnataka," Mr. Shivakumar said.

SNIPPETS

'Revanna's vote not invalid'

The Congress and the BJP alleged that JD(S) leader H.D. Revanna displayed his ballot paper to KPCC president D.K. Shivakumar, and sought that his vote be declared invalid. The parties complained to the returning officer and sought action against him. Though the Rajya Sabha election is an open ballot, the ballot has to be shown only to the nominated election agent of the party before it is put in the ballot box. However, election officials, who watched CCTV camera footage to ascertain the complaint, declared that Mr. Revanna's vote was valid.

'Gubbi' Srinivas misled Revanna?

While a war of words broke out after the former Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy accused that JD(S) legislator from Gubbi S.R. Srinivas had left the ballot paper blank, party sources said that in fact Mr. Srinivas had covered the choice of his candidate while displaying the paper. He cross-voted for BJP candidate Lahar Singh Siroya whose name was at the bottom of the list. Party sources said that it was the reason why their election agent H.D. Revanna saw the ballot paper that looked blank and even before he could react, Mr. Srinivas had cast his vote. BJP sources said Mr. Srinivas has been assured party ticket from Gubbi.

'I love Congress'

JD(S) legislator from Kolar Srinivas Gowda, who announced that he had voted in favour of the Congress candidate, said, "I voted for the Congress because I love Congress. My future will be with the Congress." Mr. Gowda, who was speculated to be leaning toward the Congress for the past one year, had earlier arrived with Congress MLC Nazeer Ahmed. Mr. Gowda said that he would quit the JD(S) since he had been ignored by party leaders. He is learnt to have met Leader of the Opposition Siddaramaiah before being escorted out by Mr. Ahmed.

Failed negotiations helped BJP win the seat

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

Despite efforts from the Janata Dal (Secular) and central Congress leadership, a possible agreement over the election to the fourth Rajya Sabha seat from the State failed, resulting in the BJP candidate winning the seat.

Last-minute intervention

JD(S) supremo H.D. Deve Gowda is learnt to have spoken to AICC president Sonia Gandhi seeking her support soon after the elections were announced, and even a last-minute intervention by CPI(M) leader Sitaram Yechury on Thursday also failed to cut the ice between the two parties.

Over the last week, the former Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy was also in touch with Congress general secretary in charge of Karnataka Randeep Singh Surjewala, but the talks did not progress well. Leader of the Opposition in the Rajya Sabha M. Mallikarjun Kharge is also learnt to have intervened in the issue.

Sources in the regional party blamed Leader of the Opposition Siddaramaiah for "scuttling" the chances of secular parties winning the fourth seat by first fielding a Muslim candidate and then turning the tables on the JD(S) by asking support for the Congress candidate to prove secular credentials, citing that they had in the past supported JD(S) supremo H.D. Deve Gowda. Mr. Siddaramaiah even wrote a letter seeking "conscience vote" from JD(S) workers. "Mr. Siddaramaiah has used the weak central leadership in his favour," JD(S) sources said.

BJP hopes a divided Opposition will help in Assembly polls too

'If Congress and JD(S) had tied up, we wouldn't have fielded the third candidate at all'

K.V. ADITYA BHARDWAJ
BENGALURU

The ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), buoyant on the victory of its three candidates in the Rajya Sabha polls on Friday, is relieved at a divided Opposition, less than a year ahead of the Assembly polls.

"If the Congress and the JD(S) had tied up, we had no chance and wouldn't have fielded the third candidate at all. But we were confident that they would not. This is probably an indicator for what would happen in the 2023 Assembly polls as well," a senior BJP leader said.

"The Rajya Sabha elections have shown disunity not only in the Opposition ranks between the Congress and the JD(S), but within the Congress too. This will convince the people that only the BJP can provide a stable government for the State," said N. Ravikumar, general secretary, BJP - Karnataka.

The intense squabbles between the Congress and the JD(S), will only help the BJP to emerge a victor, like in the 2019 Lok Sabha polls and the Rajya Sabha polls on Friday, a senior party leader argued. The BJP swept the State winning 25 seats in the 2019 Lok Sabha elections, while the Congress and the JD(S), then coalition partners, won only one seat each, and their dismal performance was attributed to intense fighting between the two parties. The coalition government fell soon, with MLAs from both parties switching to the BJP, bringing it to power.

"The fight between H.D. Kumaraswamy and Siddaramaiah will only intensify. Moreover, Mr. Siddaramaiah and D.K. Shivakumar are also locked in a one-upmanship within the Congress. Crucially, all the three leaders are from the Old Mysore region, where all their focus would be in the coming elections. This will leave us with a comfortable space in North Karnataka," a senior party strategist said.

Each victory will have a partial bearing on the next election, though I would not call it a prelude to the next election's outcome. We have our sympathisers in both the JD(S) and the Congress who are big leaders.

CT. RAVI,
BJP general secretary

We did not hijack anyone and we did not want to embarrass anyone. If we wanted to, there were half a dozen people willing. I am satisfied that all 69 Congress legislators have voted for the party.

D.K. SHIVAKUMAR,
KPCC president

National parties have trampled upon a regional party for their political selfishness. Siddaramaiah has gone into an understanding with the BJP to defeat us and has eventually defeated a Muslim candidate.

HC upholds conviction of magazine editor for publishing defamatory article

IAS officer B.A. Harish Gowda had filed case in 2000 when he was in service

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

FROM THE COURT

The High Court of Karnataka has upheld the conviction and sentence imposed on the editor of a magazine for publishing a defamatory article 22 years ago against B.A. Harish Gowda, then Director of the Pre-University Education Department and CET Cell.

Justice H.P. Sandesh passed the order while dismissing a petition filed by Ravi Kumar, who is the editor, printer, publisher, and reporter of Parivala Patrike.

Convicting Ravi Kumar under Section 499 and 500 of the Indian Penal Code, the trial court had sentenced him to undergo imprisonment for six months and pay a fine of ₹10,000.

Mr. Gowda, a retired IAS officer, had filed the complaint in 2000 when he was in service.

Refusing to interfere with the conviction and sentence, the High Court said that no fault could be found with the orders of the trial courts when the editor had "not produced any evidence before the trial court to substantiate his contention that the article was published with good faith and for the public good."

The High Court also noted that the convict had failed to produce any material in support of the article in which certain imputations were made against Mr. Gowda.

The trial courts, in imposing the sentence, had taken note of enormous hardship, suffering, mental agony, and financial loss over a very long period lasting nearly 17 years caused to the complainant to establish that false utterance was made against him in the article, the High Court said.

Even though the High Court was of the view that the sentence imposed on the editor was on the lower side for defaming the then serving IAS officer, it rejected Mr. Gowda's plea for enhancing the sentence.

Citing various verdicts of the apex court and provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the High Court said there was no provision in the Cr. PC that allows victim/complainant to file an appeal seeking enhancement of sentence as it is only the State that is vested with such right.

However, the High Court said that the Union government required to consider amending the Cr. PC to enable complainants/victims also to file appeal seeking enhancement of sentence.

'No plans to shut down any unit'

Contours of public sector assets management changed, says Nirmala Sitharaman

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

The contours of public sector assets management in the country have changed with the government recently articulating a directional change on public assets, Minister for Finance and Corporate Affairs Nirmala Sitharaman said here on Friday.

She was inaugurating a conference, "Creating wealth through markets", as part of Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav being organised in 75 cities across the country.

Minister for Finance and Corporate Affairs Nirmala Sitharaman inaugurating a conference at IISc in Bengaluru. • SUDHAKARA JAIN

The nature of public sector asset management had changed since the Budget 2021 had introduced a directional change that the private sector would be allowed in all sectors except for four core/strategic areas, she added.

"This has created a lot of interest in the private sector and as a result we have been seeing the emergence of start-ups in the areas of defence and atomic energy. This has encouraged private investors," she observed.

Initially, most investments used to be land-centric, centrally-driven and long-term involving setting up huge dams or electricity generation plants. It was tough to draw investments in these areas from the private sector those days. But today, things had changed and the country had private investors who were capable of investing and running businesses successfully, as per Ms. Sitharaman.

However, she clarified that the government had no plans to shut down any unit. "Not to shut down a unit, but to run it professionally and profitably. We want to improve the functioning of our units so that they will contribute to the growth of the economy. I want to disinvest the steel sector, to bring down the cost of production, increase output and to bring in more capital."

According to her, DIPAM (Department of Investment and Public Asset Management) is working towards classifying AAA rated public sector enterprises and put them as exchange traded stocks, through the bond market route.

Disclosures by Swapna Suresh trigger protests by Congress and BJP in Kerala

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

A new set of scandalous "disclosures" hit the Left Democratic Front (LDF) government in Kerala on Friday. Swapna Suresh, the prime accused in the UAE diplomatic channel gold smuggling case, released an unclear audio tape of a conversation with a purported police emissary.

Swapna claimed that the person, a former journalist-turned-real-estate agent, had posed as a politically influential troubleshooter.

Swapna claimed that he had allegedly used inducement and subtle threats to persuade her to retract the reportedly "damning statement" she had given in a court of law against Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan.

Strong protest: Congress workers pushing the barricades in an attempt to enter collectorate in Thrissur on Friday. • K.K. NAJEEB

Swapna had publicly accused Mr. Vijayan of using the heft of his office to exploit the embassy's diplomatic channel to smuggle out foreign currency and import "contraband metal" without Customs inspection during the previous LDF administration. At the time, Swapna was a consulate employee handling Kerala government affairs.

The "police agent" allegedly told Swapna that the government would not take kindly to any attempt to erode Mr. Vijayan's reputation. The intermediary supposedly counselled Swapna to avoid jail and legal trouble by accepting the State's inducements and recant her "libellous" assertions.

Swapna also alleged, somewhat sensationally, that the person claimed that Mr. Vijayan and CPI(M) State secretary Kodiyeri Balakrishnan had channelled their "ill-gotten" wealth to the U.S. via a religious group where the latter was employed briefly as a public relations officer. Mr. Balakrishnan denied the accusation.

Meanwhile, the "revelations" sparked aggressive anti-government protests. Congress workers skirmished with the police and braved water cannons to lay siege to district collectorates. They called for Mr. Vijayan's resignation. BJP workers too followed suit.

Online gaming: T.N. to promulgate ordinance

Panel, led by K. Chandru, constituted

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI

The Tamil Nadu government on Friday constituted a committee, headed by K. Chandru, a retired judge of the Madras High Court, to examine issues related to online gaming and submit a report within two weeks. Based on it, the government would take steps to promulgate an ordinance against online gaming.

The decision to set up the committee was taken at a meeting chaired by Chief Minister M. K. Stalin at the Secretariat on June 9, according to an official release issued on Friday. According to the terms of reference, the committee will suggest ways to identify the games that are addictive, leading to a huge financial loss and disastrous consequences, like suicide, and study whether these games really involved skill or mere tricks.

It would collate the empirical data on the ill-effects of online gaming such as suicides and financial loss, besides examining a ban on advertisements relating to online gaming. It would examine the feasibility of curtailing online payments for playing these games. The committee would study the algorithm of online games to determine whether it could be tweaked to the benefit of the gaming companies and make recommendations on the proposed legislation to "rid the menace of such games", one of the terms of reference in the government order issued by the Home Department said. It would also make suggestions on any other aspect that would help to achieve the purpose.

The committee would include the Secretary to the Government (Legal Affairs) B. Karthikeyan; Additional Director-General of Police Vinit Dev Wankhede; psychiatrist and founder of NGO Sneha Lakshmi Vijayakumar; and Professor S. Sankararaman of the Indian Institute of Technology Madras.

The meeting was held against the backdrop of some persons getting addicted to virtual games, losing money and falling into a debt trap. Some of the victims took their own lives.

An official release issued by the government said the committee would examine the adverse effect of online rummy, like financial loss and suicides, besides examining the impact of advertisements promoting online rummy on society and ways to regulate them. It would submit its report to the government in two weeks. "Based on the report, an ordinance would be promulgated, considering the need to find a solution to this issue at once. It would be a model for other States," the release said.

The government noted that the number of internet users was on the rise every other day; so were those playing online rummy. Though legislation banning online gaming was enacted by the Tamil Nadu Assembly in February last year, the Madras High Court struck it down in August last.

The appeal preferred by the Tamil Nadu government in the Supreme Court in November last year has not been taken up for hearing yet. The legislation enacted by other States, including Karnataka and Kerala, was also struck down by the respective High Courts.

In observation made at 4.00 p.m., Noida, Uttar Pradesh recorded an overall air quality index (AQI) score of 342 indicating an unhealthy level of pollution. In contrast, Maharlagun, Arunachal Pradesh recorded a healthy AQI score of 27

Air Quality Code: Poor Moderate Good (Readings indicate average AQI)

SO_2: Sulphur Dioxide. Short-term exposure can harm the respiratory system, making breathing difficult. It can affect visibility by reacting with other air particles to form haze and stain culturally important objects such as statues and monuments.

NO_2: Nitrogen Dioxide. Aggravates respiratory illness, causes haze to form by reacting with other air particles, causes acid rain, pollutes coastal waters.

CO: Carbon monoxide. High concentration in air reduces oxygen supply to critical organs like the heart and brain. At very high levels, it can cause dizziness, confusion, unconsciousness and even death.

PM2.5 & PM10: Particulate matter pollution can cause irritation of the eyes, nose and throat, coughing, chest tightness and shortness of breath, reduced lung function, irregular heartbeat, asthma attacks, heart attacks and premature death in people with heart or lung disease

The BJP's nominee will be the next President, but the election is crucial for the Opposition

With President Ram Nath Kovind's term set to end on July 24, the process to elect his successor has been kicked off with the Election Commission's announcement of the schedule on Thursday. The electoral college for the presidential elections has 4,809 members, which includes 233 Rajya Sabha and 543 Lok Sabha members, and 4,033 MLAs of State Assemblies. Each member has a certain vote value based on the strength of the population they represent. The voting is on July 18. The total value of the votes that will be up for grabs is: 10,86,431. The BJP-led NDA's tally is 5,25,706, around 20,000 votes short of the majority mark, but there is no doubt that its nominee will occupy Rashtrapati Bhavan. The Biju Janata Dal with 31,686 votes and the YSR Congress with 43,450 votes have conveyed to the Government their wholehearted support. The Odisha CM Naveen Patnaik, on May 30, and YSR Congress chief and Andhra Pradesh CM Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy, on June 2, met the PM, reportedly committing their votes to the BJP's choice for the highest office.

Even though the outcome is foretold, the contest will have many layers of political meaning and symbolism, and therefore will be keenly watched by the country and the world. The new President will take over at a time when the country is faced with a crippling religious polarisation and other challenges. This is the second presidential election where J&K's legislators will not participate, but the first after it became a UT in 2019. In the nomination of Mr. Kovind, a Dalit from the heartland, the BJP sent a political message five years ago. It will certainly have another one this year, that is being anticipated eagerly to read into what the BJP's strategy will be, going into the 2024 general election. The presidential poll will also be a test for the Opposition in terms of its unity, leadership and talking points. The Congress has the highest number of votes among the non-BJP parties but its acceptance among other parties is at the lowest in a long time. The TRS chief and Telangana CM, K. Chandrashekar Rao, and the TMC leader and West Bengal CM, Mamata Banerjee, want to lead the Opposition coalition and hence appear unwilling to concede the leadership to the Congress, though they have not made any public statement on the question. AAP leader and Delhi CM Arvind Kejriwal who is relentless in his attacks on the BJP, is equally opposed to the Congress. Considering these divergent views and conflicting ambitions, it will be a tall order for the Opposition to devise a united front and coherent strategy. All told, the presidential election will be a demonstration of how political forces are aligned in the country.

Restoration

Sri Lanka will be well served by a return to parliamentary democracy

The resignation of Sri Lanka's Finance Minister Basil Rajapaksa as Member of Parliament on Thursday did not come as a surprise, given the adverse public mood he and the rest of his family, including his brothers President Gotabaya Rajapaksa and former Prime Minister Mahinda Rajapaksa, have been facing. But what was surprising was that he took a month to quit after unprecedented violence in Sri Lanka. The violence was an outcome of the attack unleashed by supporters of the ruling Sri Lanka Podujana Peramuna (SLPP) on peaceful anti-government protesters, who have been running the campaign "Go home Gota [Gotabaya Rajapaksa]" over the country's worst economic crisis. It needs no reiteration that Basil Rajapaksa, regarded as the livewire of the SLPP, was perceived in certain quarters as one of those responsible for the attack on the protesters. His political departure comes at a time when efforts are on to get Cabinet clearance for the proposed 21st Constitutional Amendment, which is aimed at empowering Parliament over the executive President, apart from barring those holding dual citizenship from entering the legislature. Basil Rajapaksa, who holds American citizenship too, would have been affected and realisation may have dawned on him.

The development should provide a breather to Prime Minister Ranil Wickremesinghe, who has been batting for significant changes in the Constitution. Needless to say, he would like the complete restoration of the 19th Amendment, which was adopted by Parliament in April 2015 when he was the PM; Maithripala Sirisena was the President. Gotabaya Rajapaksa, who assured his country days after the violence that he would take steps to amend the Constitution to bring back the 19th Amendment, should honour his word. He should not be influenced by voices within the SLPP that the economic agenda should take precedence over the political agenda of constitutional amendments. The two agendas have become so intertwined that the government's performance in the context of the political agenda would create a conducive climate for the international community to consider investing in Sri Lanka in a big way. The President, who has said that he would like to complete his remaining term of two and a half years, should keep this in mind and facilitate the task of Mr. Wickremesinghe in reconstructing the beleaguered economy. One should not forget that the 19th Amendment, while in force, was no bar for then President Maithripala Sirisena to effect a constitutional coup. This is why the demand for the abolition of the office of executive President assumes significance. There may still be a long way to go for abolition but, in the event of the proposed 21st Amendment being passed, the experience gained should be used by all stakeholders constructively to pursue the goal of bringing back the parliamentary form of government, which was in existence in Sri Lanka for 30 years since Independence in 1948.

India is not the fastest growing big economy

A closer look at recent data on GDP shows that the numbers are flawed and recovery is incomplete

ARUN KUMAR

The Provisional Estimates of Annual National Income in 2021-22 just released show that GDP grew 8.7% in real terms and 19.5% in nominal terms (including inflation). It makes India the fastest growing major economy in the world. Further, the real economy is 1.51% larger than it was in 2019-20, just before the novel coronavirus pandemic hit the world. In nominal terms it is higher by 17.9%. These numbers imply that the rate of inflation was 10.8% in 2021-22 and 16.4% between the two years, 2019-20 and 2021-22.

Quarterly growth rates

This picture implies almost no growth and high inflation since the pre-pandemic year. So, the tag of the fastest growing economy means little. If an economy drops sharply and then rises equally fast to reach its earlier level, that cannot be taken as an indication of a rapidly growing economy.

The quarter to quarter growth currently may give some indication of the present rate of growth. In 2020-21, the quarterly rate of growth increased through the year. In 2021-22, the rate of growth has been slowing down. Of course in 2020-21, the COVID-19 lockdown had a severe impact in Q1 (-23.8%); after that the rate of growth picked up. In 2021-22, the rate of growth in Q1 had to sharply rise (20.3%). Ignoring the outliers in Q1, growth rates in 2021-22 have sequentially petered out in subsequent quarters: 8.4%, 5.4% and 4.1%. True, the last quarter (January-March 2022) data was impacted by the Omicron-related lockdowns in January and February. It was further impacted in March by the supply disruptions following the war in Ukraine and the severe COVID-19 lockdown in China. Going forward, while the lockdown in China is over, the war-related impact is likely to persist since there is no end in sight. Thus, price rise and impact on production are likely to persist. The rapid rise in prices will impact demand from the vast majority of citizens who are losing out. That will reduce growth further.

Data as the problem

More worryingly, the issue is about correctness of data. The annual estimates given now are provisional since complete data are not available for 2021-22. They may be better than the second advance estimates released three months ago as more data become available. There is a greater problem with quarterly estimates since very limited data are available for estimating it. So, the data for the fourth quarter of 2021-22 released now is even more problematic

The first issue is that during 2020-21, due to the pandemic, full data could not be collected for Q1. Further, for agriculture, quarterly data assumes that the targets are achieved. But in Q1, a lot of fruits, vegetables, flowers, milk and poultry products could not come to the market, and rotted and wasted. This is more than 50% of the agriculture output. Thus, the growth rate of agriculture was certainly less than the official figure of 3%.

Agriculture is a part of the unorganised sector. Very little data are available for it but for agriculture – neither for the quarter nor for the year. It is simply assumed that the limited data available for the organised sector can be used to act as a proxy. In other words the non-agriculture unorganised sector is represented by the organised sector. The data for the full organised sector are also not available so 'high frequency' data (listed in the press note) are used. For instance, Goods and Services Tax (GST) collection data are used. But, it is well known that GST is collected almost entirely from the organised sector. In brief: very little data are available for quarterly estimates; and even less is available for the unorganised sector. Since the same method is used to estimate the annual growth rate the errors get repeated.

Errors in total, components

If better data became available after the shock of the lockdown, and it got used, there should be substantial revision in the previous year's quarterly data. But if one compares the Q1 2020-21 data in the latest release with the data released in May 2021, the change is 0.3%. Does this imply that the high frequency data used is very well able to predict quarterly GDP? This is unlikely to be the case when a shock is administered to the economy which changes the parameters of the economy. The data remaining largely unchanged implies that the same error is being carried forward.

The quarterly data is added up to yield the annual total. If a better method was used to estimate the annual data, it should not equal the sum of the quarterly data which as argued above is estimated on the basis of a limited data set. The implication is that the errors in the quarterly data are repeated in the annual data.

The method using the organised sector to proxy the unorganised non-agriculture sector may have been acceptable before demonetisation (2016) but is not correct since then. The reason is that the unorganised non-agriculture sector suffered far more than the organised sector and more so during the waves of the pandemic. Large parts of the unorganised non-agriculture sector have experienced a shift in demand to the organised sector since they produce similar things. This introduces large errors in GDP estimates since official agencies do not estimate this shift. All that is known is that the Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSME) sector has faced closures and failures.

If GDP data are incorrect, data on its components – private consumption and investment – must also be incorrect. Most often, ratios are applied to the GDP to estimate them. But, if the GDP is in error, then the ratios will yield erroneous results. The other main components – government and external trade – may be assumed to be reasonably accurate even though this data is revised over several years.

Further, the ratios themselves would have been impacted by the shock of the lockdown and the decline of the unorganised sectors. Additionally, private consumption data is suspect since according to the data given by the Reserve Bank of India which largely captures the organised sector, consumer confidence throughout 2021-22 was way below (not marginally lower) its pre-pandemic level of 104 achieved in January 2020. So, consumption could not have come close to its pre-pandemic level.

In brief, neither the total nor the ratios are correct. Clearly, consumption and investment figures are over-estimates and very likely because the decline in the unorganised sectors has not been captured.

Possible correction

In the best possible scenario, let us assume that the organised sector (55% of GDP) and agriculture (14% of GDP) are growing at the official rate of growth of 8.2% and 3%, respectively. Then, they would contribute 4.93% to GDP growth. The non-agriculture unorganised component is declining for two reasons: first, the closure of units and the second the shift in demand to the organised sector. Even if 5% of the units have closed down this year and 5% of the demand has shifted to the organised sector, the unorganised sector would have declined by about 10%; the contribution of this component to GDP growth would be -3.1%.

Based on the above assumptions, the GDP for 2021-22 would have grown by only 1.8%, and not 8.7%, and it would be less than the pre-pandemic GDP of 2019-20 by 4.92%. Clearly, recovery is incomplete and India is not the fastest growing big economy of the world.

The gulf of sensitivity that India will have to cross

The Government's strategy to quell West Asia's outrage must include the need to foster an understanding of other faiths

VIVEK KATJU

The strong and widespread targeting of India in the Islamic world over the past few days arose from a specific theological consideration. It was not directly related to the politics or policies of India's ruling dispensation though its opponents within India would wish to give it that colour. The veracity of this assessment is borne out by the general apathy of the Islamic ummah towards India's Muslim population. From time to time, the Organisation of Islamic Cooperation (OIC) has criticised the Indian state's alleged discrimination of its Muslim minorities. However, the organisation's views have never formed the basis of its member-states' bilateral ties with India. And, Islamic states have not been swayed by Pakistan's consistent portrayal of the Narendra Modi government as fascist and anti-Muslim.

Indeed, India's relations with some significant Muslim countries such as Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) have strengthened since Prime Minister Narendra Modi assumed office in May 2014. It is possible that the current resentment, even outrage, on account of the present controversy may lead to a greater scrutiny in the ummah of the Modi government's policies towards the country's Muslims. India's social situation may come under a deeper focus but the governments of Islamic countries would not want their India policies to be determined by theological considerations; they have an array of interests at stake in their India ties.

There is a distinction

That the Islamic governments protested against the comments made regarding the Prophet by the former Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) National Spokesperson, Nupur Sharma, and the former media head of the party's Delhi unit, Naveen Kumar Jindal, was not surprising. What was so though was that neither the Government nor the ruling party seemed to have realised the great offence they constituted to all Muslims worldwide and the anger the comments would generate. At least the astute External Affairs Minister, S. Jaishankar, who has been a distinguished diplomat in his earlier avatar, should have known that despite enormous differences within themselves, Muslims venerate the Prophet; they all find any perception of disrespect towards him to be intolerable. Thus, there is a distinction between criticising some social practices of Muslims and what is perceived to be an attack on the personality of the Prophet.

Ms. Sharma's remarks during a talk show on a prominent TV channel were made on May 26. The next day a clip of these remarks was added to a tweet. That drew wide attention in India and Ms. Sharma complained of having received threats to her person and also her family members. At the same time a Muslim organisation lodged a legal complaint against Ms. Sharma. It was inevitable that in these times of instant communications and social media, Ms. Sharma's comments would find an audience in Islamic countries; and, that anti-India elements would also seek to publicise them. Yet, it appears that the Indian establishment perhaps thought if attention was given to this matter at all, that Ms. Sharma's remarks would be placed in the context of the shrill charges and countercharges made daily on Indian TV, and would therefore not be taken seriously.

End misperceptions

Is this because the Indian system, including the ruling dispensation, has an inadequate appreciation of the sensitivities of different faiths? Is it because the Indian intellectual tradition as it has evolved after Independence does not pay sufficient attention to faith, perhaps, considering it backward? And, now while there is an assertion of religiosity, there is also a lack of curiosity about other faiths. This seems to cut across all segments of society and has led to a lack of knowledge of other religions, leading to misperceptions. This is illustrated in simple things such as innocently sending 'happy' messages on occasions of mourning of adherents of another faith or in works of art. But there is a darker side to society too which is witnessed in the reinforcement of prejudice about other faiths and the use of words and expressions which cause offence. This can also be witnessed in extolling the virtues of one's own faith and putting another in an unfavourable light. Clearly, all this points to the need to foster an understanding in society at large of other faiths and their sensitivities. This is especially needed in our multi-faith society at a time when religiosity is rising sharply across the world.

During a VIP visit

It was unfortunate that the situation arising out of Ms. Sharma's remarks occurred at a time when the Vice-President of India, M. Venkaiah Naidu, was on a three-nation tour of Gabon, Senegal and Qatar. Mr Naidu left India on May 30 and after visiting the two African countries, was to reach Doha on June 4. Clearly, the Indian foreign policy establishment led by the External Affairs Minister missed the sentiment brewing in the Islamic world because of Ms. Sharma's comments. If the External Affairs Minister had assessed what was happening, he would have surely taken action to prevent any embarrassment to the Vice-President on foreign soil. It can hardly be disputed that the President of India, the Vice-President and the Prime Minister, should never be put even in an uncomfortable position when they are abroad. Did this lapse occur because of a lack of appreciation of how Islamic sentiment is roused because of a perception of an insult to the Prophet?

According to a report in this newspaper, the "damage control" process began when the Vice-President was flying from Senegal to Doha and the Qataris conveyed that the ceremonial banquet of Mr. Naidu's host, the Deputy Amir of Qatar, would have to be called off because he was suspected to have been exposed to COVID-19. In such circumstances a very senior person hosts the customary banquet but it is not cancelled. It also appears now that the Indian side was taken aback when the Indian Ambassador in Doha was called in on June 5 and Qatar while appreciating the action taken against Ms. Sharma and Mr. Jindal by the BJP demanded that India issues a public apology for Ms. Sharma's remarks against the Prophet. There is no question of making one for the remarks of a party functionary.

This can only be called a very offensive action against India by Qatar. It could only have caused the greatest embarrassment to Mr. Naidu. It is to his credit that he proceeded with the visit. After the Qataris went public with their action, other Islamic countries lodged protests too. India did well to reject the statements of the OIC and Pakistan for they reeked of political considerations.

The last word

There is a mutuality of interests between the Arab states and India, and hence when the temperature cools, the flow of relations will go on. But India must take the obvious lessons from this entire episode, beginning with greater sensitivity to all faiths both for social harmony and promotions of India's external interests.

Presidential polls

Although the Bharatiya Janata Party-led National Democratic Alliance has a fair chance to get its nominee elected as the President of India, this does not make the July 18 contest insipid (Page 1, "Presidential polls scheduled for July 18", June 10). Who the BJP leadership picks as its nominee will be a study of the party's political strategy. Back then, President Ram Nath Kovind's candidature was a Dalit outreach. There are social groups and regions that need the BJP's attention, which may be a possible factor now. It will also be interesting to see whether some NDA allies need cosseting. The Opposition game plan will be even more interesting. A weakened Congress's word may not be the most important one in picking a combined Opposition candidate, a reality the Gandhis may have to accept. There are Opposition leaders wanting to outshine the Congress. This may turn out to be a dress rehearsal for Opposition plans for the 2024 general election.

N. SADHASIVA REDDY,
Bengaluru

■ This is an opportunity for the Opposition parties to display unity before 2024 by putting up a joint candidate. They can demonstrate their resolve to fight the BJP. The election is bound to acquire an ideological colour as any electoral battle is inevitably intertwined with the ideological battle. Whoever is elected to the most exalted constitutional office should be more concerned with upholding the Constitution than anything else. The incoming President may have to play a crucial role to play in case 2024 throws up a hung Parliament.

Juveniles and justice

There is a need to revisit the concept of juvenile justice. The concept of 'mental maturity' has undergone a sea change. Today, the average teenager has multitudinous knowledge inputs about the dark globe than teenagers of an earlier era who had limited exposure to the world. The Internet, social media, cinema and television, and also news reports are reshaping his mind. Society has also changed from its presumed innocence of earlier decades.
The recent case in Hyderabad of a minor girl allegedly gang-raped by minor boys should be an eye-opener. If a minor can repeat the offence, he is no more a minor mentally. Rape, in any case is heinous, and the term 'minor' should not apply.

Star of women's cricket

Whenever Indian women's cricket is spoken of, the name Mithali Raj will always stand out. She will be noted for building her career overcoming all pressures that are generally associated with sportspersons, especially women, in India. This "lady Tendulkar" will be hard to replace. However, Mithali can offer much more to Indian women's cricket by way of coaching.

GANAPATHI BHAT,
Akola, Maharashtra

■ Mithali Raj will be remembered for the fact that she is the star of women's cricket. Her journey is a source of inspiration to many an Indian girl. One hopes that she continues to play a role by shaping the future of younger talent.

CHIRUVELLA SARATHBABU,

■ Women's cricket has been transformed in a remarkable way; Mithali Raj has made a significant contribution in popularising the game in India. Her retirement will create a vacuum.

Kashmiri Pandits living on the edge

A spate of targeted killings of Hindus in Kashmir threatens to reverse years of efforts to rehabilitate Kashmiri Pandits to the Valley. Peerzada Ashiq reports on the fear in the community, which is once again faced with the dilemma of whether to stay or leave in the face of violence

It is easy to spot from a distance the curtains drawn on the windows. Many two-bedroom flats have their doors locked from the outside. The buzz of residents that should surround the 14 three-storey towers is missing at the protected Sheikhpora transit Pandit colony in Budgam, bordering the posh colonies of Srinagar. The families of around 300 Kashmiri Pandits, who returned to the Valley and took up government jobs after being forced to migrate two decades ago, live in these flats.

The anxiety of the residents is palpable. The additional security personnel, stationed at strategically located watch towers, have become more vigilant. Glittering spools of concertina wires have been placed on top of the walls of the towers. The only Muslims who regularly enter the premises are well-known milkmen and vegetable vendors. No unknown person from outside is allowed inside any more. Around 30 Muslim students, tutored privately by Pandit teachers, have stopped visiting the colony.

Life at the Sheikhpora colony was not dull and grim until May 12 this year. On that day, Rahul Bhat, a 35-year-old Pandit who lived in one of the vertical towers, was shot dead in his office chair by well-trained militants in Chadoora's tehsil office in Budgam, about 12 km from the colony. This was followed by back-to-back targeted killings of a Hindu schoolteacher from Jammu's Samba district, a Hindu bank manager from Rajasthan, and a Hindu wine shop employee from Jammu's Rajouri district. Shock over the first killing quickly turned into unease. Today, Kashmiri Pandits, who are living on the edge, recall the violence of the 1990s when they were driven out of the region and fervently hope that the efforts that have been made towards ensuring peace and security since then do not end up futile.

'We are again caged'

Almost a month has passed since Bhat's killing. Rinku, a Class 9 student at the Kashmir Valley School, which is less than 5 km away from the Sheikhpora colony, has stopped going to school. He has already missed his term examination. Schools in Kashmir are planning online classes for students of migrant Hindu families. Rinku's parents – Ajay Pandita, 45, and Sharda Bhat, 44, both government teachers posted in Srinagar – have also decided to stay home in their two-room flat. The silence in the flat is broken by Pandita's 82-year-old mother, who insists that she should be shifted to the upper storey of her three-storey house where she lived before migration in 1990, at Dhar Bagh on the outskirts of Srinagar's Harwan area.

"My mother has had dementia for many years," says Pandita. "The only thing she remembers is her pre-migration house in Harwan. Little does she know that we are again caged (like in the 1990s)." He was 13 years old in July 1990 when his family was faced with a similar dilemma: whether to stay or leave in the face of violence. "I faintly remember Pandit killings," says Pandita. "We decided to leave behind our house as well as 30 kanals of land. They have all been sold." Pandita is still in touch with Muslim men from Dhar Bagh, many of whom were part of his cricket team.

Pandita quit his job in Jammu and joined the education department in Srinagar in 2017 to be with his wife. Sharda was among the first educated Pandits to get a job under former Prime Minister Manmohan Singh's package for the return and rehabilitation of Kashmir migrants in 2010.

It is on account of Pandita's mother and his son that the family has decided not to migrate this time round. Around 50% of the 300 families living in the Sheikhpora colony have left to safer locations in Hindu-majority Jammu, after weeks of protests demanding a transfer outside the Valley until "the situation improves".

"My son has grown up here, he likes Kashmir," says Pandita. "He has Muslim friends. He has never felt out of place in his classroom. He does not like the Jammu weather; it's too hot. I don't want his education to suffer. We are not leaving." His two-year-old daughter goes to a local preparatory school.

Pandita, like others in the colony, is staring at an unanswered question: "Why are we being targeted? Who has cast an evil eye on our healthy routine?"

'The times have changed'

The last decade was peaceful at the Sheikhpora colony. Sanjay Bhat, now in his 60s, says he would walk in the Eidgah ground adjacent to the colony. Muslim boys played cricket and football while scores of Pandits ran around with no sense of fear, he recalls. "Pandits mingled with locals outside the camp. I would buy vegetables from shops outside the colony. I would go out to meet my Muslim friends and they would come to see me. All that has changed." Attending weddings and final rites in the case of deaths of members of the other community strengthened bonds, love, respect and compassion, he says.

Pandita, posted at a government school in the Safa Kadal area of the volatile old city in Srinagar, says the community was harmed neither in 2010, when the killings of protesting civilians sparked a cycle of violence, nor in 2016, when Hizbul Mujahideen 'commander' Burhan Wani's killing led to street protests for at least five months. He recalls how stone-throwing youth helped him get to safety in 2016: "I was caught in a clash between young stone-throwing men and security forces near Sheikhpora's main road. The young men helped me to take the safe route home."

Pandita's daily routine changed on October 7, 2021, when militants shot dead the principal, Satinder Kour, and a schoolteacher, Deepak Chand, within the premises of the Government Boys Higher Secondary school in Eidgah, Srinagar. This is in the same zone where Pandita and his wife were posted. "I was in class when I heard about the attack. Sharda was in a state of shock. My staff accompanied me to my wife's school. We were asked to leave for home by noon," Pandita recalls. Sharda had to remove her bindi and cover her head to leave the downtown areas.

"Our colleagues miss us. Sharda still gets calls from the staff. Students, who always showed us respect, insist that we return to the classroom. The times have changed though," Pandita says.

The killings reported in October 2021 and May this year have not only scared Kashmiri Pandits in the Valley, but also frightened other Pandits who were planning to return without government hand-holding. "My sister and brother-in-law were so encouraged by the situation earlier that we began looking for land to build a house," Pandita says.

Sixty-five kilometres from the Sheikhpora colony, the Vessu transit camp on the Srinagar-Jammu national highway in south Kashmir's Kulgam is home to more than 450 Pandit families. It also wears a deserted look. Much like in other transit camps, an officer of the rank of Superintendent of Police has been put in charge of security. Over 50% of the families have left for Jammu in the past one month and those who remain prefer to stay indoors. Sanjay Kaul and his wife, both teachers, work in the Qazigund area but have decided against rejoining school till their issues, especially concerning security, are addressed.

"Around 250 students from the Vessu transit camp study in different schools. My child is in Class 10. It's a crucial year. He never felt unsafe earlier. There were times before these killings when I used to freely visit my ancestral property in the village," Kaul says.

Scores of Kashmiri Pandits who owned orchards, including apple, in south Kashmir were able to look after the fruit till the harvest time in autumn. "I would help my Muslim neighbours pluck fruit from the orchards and they would help me. All that may come to an end if the killings continue," says a worried T. Raina, a Pandit employee with ancestral land in south Kashmir.

Kaul, who was appointed in 2010 under the Prime Minister's package, says the recent killings have made it clear that no place is safe in the Valley for the employees. "Of late, our sense of security is waning. I am not even safe in my colony, in spite of the security cover. An employee was killed in broad daylight in his office chair. We are killed because of our name and faith," Kaul says. All the 1,200 Pandit employees who were living in rented accommodation in several districts have fled the Valley, he says. "They are the most scared lot," he adds.

A series of killings

The new militant movement against minorities started on December 31, 2020, when a Hindu goldsmith, Satpal Nischal, was shot dead in his shop in the upmarket Hari Singh High Street in Srinagar, just weeks after the Centre's new domicile law was implemented in Jammu and Kashmir. Later, from October 2021, a series of targeted killings of members of minorities, including Kashmiri Pandits, began. The first was on October 5, when Makhan Lal Bindroo of the famous Bindroo Medicate was killed in his shop in Srinagar. Eleven civilians became victims of targeted killings that month, including five non-local labourers and three members of minority communities. Four Kashmiri Pandits have been killed since October 2021 till date in the Valley by militants.

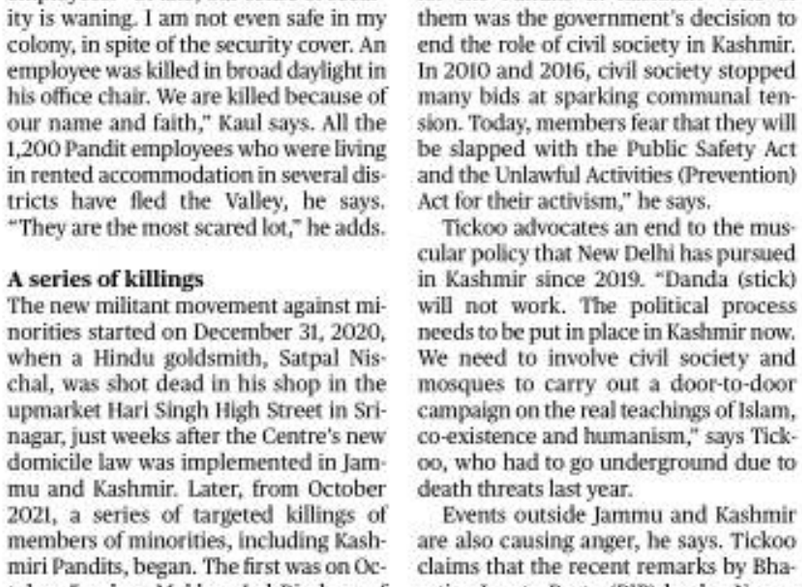
The string of killings followed the implementation of new land and job policies after the Centre's decision to end Jammu and Kashmir's special status and divide the State into two Union Territories. These new policies were widely opposed by the mainstream regional parties, including the Jammu and Kashmir National Conference (NC, and the Peoples Democratic Party (PDP). A website was also launched in September last year to address the grievances of Kashmiri Pandits related to land alienation, distress sale, encroachments and trespassing of Pandit properties in Kashmir.

The new security situation has also posed a threat to the 808 Kashmiri Pandit families who never migrated from the Valley. "If even one non-migrant Pandit is killed, they too will have no option," says Sanjay Tickoo, president of the Kashmiri Pandit Sangharsh Samiti (KPSS), a caretaker body of the 808 families. Tickoo says many factors have together created a worrisome situation for the Pandits in Kashmir. "One of them was the government's decision to end the role of civil society in Kashmir. In 2010 and 2016, civil society stopped many bids at sparking communal tension. Today, members fear that they will be slapped with the Public Safety Act and the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act for their activism," he says.

Tickoo advocates an end to the muscular policy that New Delhi has pursued in Kashmir since 2019. "Danda (stick) will not work. The political process needs to be put in place in Kashmir now. We need to involve civil society and mosques to carry out a door-to-door campaign on the real teachings of Islam, co-existence and humanism," says Tickoo, who had to go underground due to death threats last year.

Events outside Jammu and Kashmir are also causing anger, he says. Tickoo claims that the recent remarks by Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) leader Nupur Sharma about Prophet Mohammad, the Azan issue, the Masjid-Mandir disputes, and "bulldozer politics" all add to the volatility of Kashmir. "The wrong portrayal in The Kashmir Files of all Muslims in Kashmir as 'jihadi' and militants was the last nail in the coffin," he says.

No intelligence agency in Kashmir can predict the next targeted killing, Tickoo warns. "Only The Resistance Front (TRF) knows who the next target will be." The TRF, which the police believe is an offshoot of the Lashkar-e-Taiba, has warned of attacks against Pandits and non-local workers for "becoming a part of New Delhi's design to change the demography of Muslim-majority J&K". Officials say the pattern of killings makes it clear that militants are targeting not just Pandits but Hindus from Jammu too, especially those serving in Kashmir against posts reserved for Scheduled Castes (SC). Two SC teachers – Rajni Bala and Deepak Chand – and two shopkeepers from Jammu, including the son of the owner of the famous Krishna Daba in Srinagar, were among those killed in Kashmir in the last one year. Satish Kumar Singh, a driver living in south Kashmir's Kulgam, was also killed on April 14 this year.



"It is sad that there is a lot of focus on Kashmiri Pandits, but not on the Hindus from Jammu who have also suffered at the hands of militants. More than anyone, we need a transfer policy. We are alien to the local culture. We will work here for a certain period, but eventually we should be transferred to our home districts," says Rajiv Kumar, an SC employee posted in Kulgam.

According to the KPSS, 12 attacks were carried out on religious minorities from June 2020 till May 31, 2022. Nineteen targeted attacks also left 13 Muslims dead this year. Around 33 targeted attacks recorded last year left at least 20 local Muslims dead too, according to official figures.

What is at stake in Kashmir?

The resurgence of militancy is posing an unprecedented threat to the process of return of Kashmir Pandits since the Prime Minister's package was implemented in 2010. The package aimed at recruiting 6,000 educated Pandits and housing them in transit colonies in Kashmir first, before they decided to shift to localities with the local population. The ₹1,876-crore package, conceived by then Prime Minister Singh in 2008, also offered an initial financial assistance of ₹7.5 lakh per family, which was later increased to ₹20-25 lakh. The migrant Kashmiri Pandit families from rural pockets were assured of a waiver of interest on loans and a cash assistance of ₹1-1.5 lakh for re-cultivation of agriculture and horticulture land.

"There was a deeply strategic dimension to the package too. It is also for the majority community, which must see the importance of diversity. History has shown that when a society becomes homogenised, it creates fault lines within itself. Heterogeneity is a psychological enabler for young minds to get intellectualised early," says Kapil Kak, a Kashmir Pandit who retired as an Air Vice Marshal and worked on a track-two dialogue with Prime Minister Singh on the return of Pandits. The package bore the desired results on the ground without much politics around it, with the NC and the PDP lending their support when in power in the erstwhile State of Jammu and Kashmir.

According to the latest official figures, 5,928 youths have been appointed under the package in various departments in different districts of the Valley between 2010 and 2022. Over 5,412 have already been posted. The number of Pandit employees is nearly 15% of the total Pandit families who migrated in the 1990s. As per Jammu and Kashmir government figures, 60,000 families migrated in the wake of unprecedented militant violence in Kashmir in the 1990s, which included 40,142 Hindu, 2,684 Muslim and 1,730 Sikh families.

The transit colonies came up without any opposition in the Valley. In south Kashmir, a transit colony was set up in Pulwama's Haal, Anantnag's Mattan and Kulgam's Vessu areas. In north Kashmir, Pandit colonies were set up in Kupwara's Natnusa and Baramulla's Veervan. In central Kashmir, Budgam's Sheikhpora and Ganderbal's Tulmulla have transit colonies.

"A total of 1,200 transit accommodations are also coming up at Ganderbal, Shopian, Bandipora, Baramulla and Kupwara, and additional land for another 2,744 units [flats] has been identified at seven locations," a senior official says, on the condition of anonymity. Among the new identified localities are Anantnag's Marhama, Ganderbal's Wandhama, Baramulla's Fatehpora, Shopian's Keegam, Bandipora's Sumbal and Kupwara's Kulangam.

The demand of protesting Pandit employees to be transferred to Jammu would, in effect, defeat the purpose of the package. None of the 5,412 employees has resumed duties even after three weeks of the killings.

"When these appointments were made, there was a clause that they will only serve in the districts where they were appointed. However, all those supernumerary have now been re-designated as divisional cadre posts. The employees cannot be posted in any district within the Valley now onwards," Jammu and Kashmir Relief Commissioner A.K. Pandita says. "Pandits should treat the killings as accidents. The government will not accept the demand to transfer them to Jammu. The security situation has improved, as we saw the Kheer Bhawani Mela being celebrated smoothly in Ganderbal's Tulmula area. The government will not allow such incidents to become a factor for the failure of the initiative." Pandita hopes that 50% of the employees who left for Jammu will return soon. "Fifty per cent of the employees are already present in the Valley but not attending to duty. Their demands regarding promotions and postings have been considered and addressed too," he adds.

Officials say Pandit employees who are couples have been transferred to a single district. Around 170 teachers have been already posted in 'safer zones' in Srinagar. The government has also increased the area domination of all the areas where around 4,000 Hindus, who did not migrate in the 1990s, live.

Back in the Sheikpora colony, Ajay Pandita is willing to join duty only after he feels secure. "It has to come from the majority community first. The government has to work towards creating a conducive atmosphere in Kashmir for the minorities," he says.

RS election: BJP holds sway in Karnataka

A delegation of BJP leaders met the Election Commission in Delhi. Speaking to reporters, Union Minister Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi said, "We have submitted complaints about both Maharashtra and Haryana. We have urged the Election Commission to declare the election null and void since several rules were broken in both the States."

In Haryana too the counting did not start till late evening. The BJP has complained that two Congress MLAs displayed their votes to unauthorised personnel. The Congress has countered this claim. Senior Congress leader Ajay Maken, who is in fray, tweeted, "Fearing the loss of face in Rajya Sabha election results, the BJP has resorted to cheap politics stalling counting of votes in Haryana."

A three-member delegation of Congress leaders led by Supreme Court lawyer and Rajya Sabha member Vivek Tankha met the Election Commission. He was joined virtually by Chhattisgarh Chief Minister Bhupesh Baghel, P. Chidambaram, Mr. Surjewala, Bhupender Singh Hooda and Rajeev Shukla.

"There is no reason to hold back counting in Haryana. The BJP's allegation has already been dismissed by the Returning Officer in the State who in his report clearly said that there has been no violation of secrecy," Mr. Tankha told reporters in Delhi.

SC rejects plea for special counselling for NEET-PG

The court noted that out of 40,000 seats up for counselling, only 1,456 had remained vacant, most of which were non-clinical seats.

The Supreme Court on Thursday had indicated that 'stray' rounds of counselling to fill up the vacant seats cannot go on forever.

Additional Solicitor General Balbir Singh, for the Health Ministry, had submitted that out of a total 1,456 vacant seats in NEET-PG 2021, over 1,100 were allocated to private colleges while the government had 300 vacant seats.

Mr. Singh said seats were mostly for non-clinical courses. "These courses are mostly for those who prefer an academic life. They would not be medical doctors but would be qualified to teach subjects like anatomy, etc. Very difficult to get jobs. So students do not opt for these courses though there are seats available," the law officer said.

Mr. Singh had also noted that 76.7% of the vacant seats belong to private institutions and students did not find it feasible to enroll for expensive non-clinical courses in these college.

The court, on Wednesday, on a petition filed by a group of doctors led by Astha Goel, led by senior advocate Rachna Srivastava, advocates Charu Mathur and Milind Kumar, had taken serious note of the 1,456 vacant seats.

The petitioners had sought a "special stray" round of counselling to fill up these seats. The court, on Wednesday, had said that seats cannot be left vacant when the country, after a pandemic, cannot afford a dearth of doctors.

However, after hearing the government's version that such vacant seats were an annual feature, the Bench had agreed on Thursday that there ought to be a limit to the counselling process for the PG 2021, which should not interfere with the NEET-PG 2022 process.

Ukraine war hits Surat's diamond industry hard

"We import 100% of our raw materials from Russia, Australia and African countries such as South Africa, Zimbabwe and Congo. Seventy-five per cent of the consumption of end products is by the U.S. directly or indirectly. Due to the problems between Russia and Ukraine, the U.S. has put a ban on Russian companies. Nearly 27% to 30% of raw materials are from Russia. In patli size, almost 70% is imported from Russia," Mr. Navadia says.

The entire work of small diamond cutting and polishing is done in rural Gujarat. Workers do farm work in the morning and polish and cut the raw diamond in the evening. "Diamond gets its real value after our work," Mr. Patel says, seeking help from the government.

The solitaire stones, which are slightly costly and big, are handled by the processing units in Surat city.

Nearly 12 lakh people work in this sector apart from about five lakh in rural Gujarat. Nearly 70% of these workers are from Gujarat followed by workers from Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh, Bihar and Kerala.

The workforce was mostly from the Patel community earlier. The funding for their work was done by traders belonging to the Jain community. Now, both communities have a stronghold over the trade of diamonds.

Change of vocation

The new generation is looking for office jobs and other vocations. But Bhavnagar, Amreli, Junagarh, Rajkot and Surat districts have a huge number of workers. "We have urged the Centre to intervene. U.S. has banned even Indian products. As U.S. is the main market, we have to abide by their decisions," Mr. Navadia, who is also the national treasurer of the Vishwa Hindu Parishad, says.

A small processing unit owner who wished not to be named says he had to close down his unit due to the non-availability of raw material. "I had 70 workers under me. None of them have jobs now," he adds.

One interesting factor is that compared with other sectors, demand has increased for diamonds due to the changing trend of investment among youngsters in the United States.

Increase in demand

"During the COVID-19 pandemic, we were fearing loss of at least 25%. But our exports boomed during the lockdown. The investment pattern of youngsters in U.S. seems to have changed. They are buying diamond ornaments using their investment. The demand has increased. It is a historically golden period for diamond sector," Mr. Navadia says.

According to the Gems and Jewellery Export Promotion Council, total exports of gems and jewels was about $37 billion in 2021-22 compared with $27 billion in the previous year.

"We have unprecedented demand. The Prime Minister himself is taking initiative and he has promised that there will be a proper policy on value addition in this sector so that 100% benefit comes to India. The trade war between China and the West is benefiting us. The work has increased. 400 new factories are now making jewellery," Mr. Navadia says.

Protests in many States over remarks on Prophet

Violent clashes in West Bengal, Jharkhand, Uttar Pradesh; curfew and suspension of Internet services in Jammu

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

Massive protests broke out in several States on Friday over the recent controversial remarks on Prophet Muhammed by suspended Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) spokesperson Nupur Sharma and the now-expelled Delhi media unit chief Naveen Kumar Jindal.

While Delhi witnessed peaceful protests demanding Ms. Sharma's arrest outside the Jama Masjid after Friday prayers, the police in Jharkhand fired in the air and resorted to baton charge to control protesters who threw stones that injured a few police personnel.

Authorities in Jammu imposed curfew in a few areas and parts of Kashmir observed a shutdown as street protests erupted over the alleged controversial remarks by Ms. Sharma and a local journalist on social media.

In Uttar Pradesh, peaceful protests were held in Kanpur, Bijnor, Moradabad, Rampur and Lucknow, but violence broke out in Saharanpur and Prayagraj. Police have arrested as many as 136 people from six districts of the State.

In Saharanpur, protesters demanded the death sentence for Ms. Sharma and in Prayagraj motorcycles and carts were set on fire. One policeman was injured in Prayagraj and the police had to fire tear gas and resort to lathi charge to disperse the demonstrators.

In West Bengal, hundreds of protesters blocked roads in Howrah district. Agitators clashed with police personnel during an attempt to lift the blockade on National Highway-6, the police said. Protesters also blocked railway tracks in the Howrah-Kharagpur section.

Agitations were also held in some areas of Ahmedabad and Vadodara in Gujarat. In Telangana's Old City of Hyderabad, peaceful crowds gathered outside Mecca Masjid after Friday prayers. The police resorted to baton charge in Mehidipatnam to prevent protestors from taking out a huge rally from Masjid E Azizia at Humayun Nagar.

In Maharashtra, protests were held in Thane, Aurangabad, Solapur, Nandurbar, Parbhani, Beed, Latur, Bhandara, Chandrapur and Pune districts. At least 3,000 protesters, including around 1,000 women, took out a march in Navi Mumbai's Panvel demanding the arrest of Ms. Sharma and Mr. Jindal.

In Karnataka's Belagavi, miscreants hanged an effigy of Ms. Sharma from an electric wire near a mosque on Fort Road, the police said. Meanwhile, a complaint was filed at a court in Muzaffarpur in Bihar against Ms. Sharma, Mr. Jindal and religious leader Swami Yati Narsinghanand by a social activist against their alleged inflammatory statements.

Tension in Jammu

A curfew that was imposed following street protests on Thursday continued for the second day in Chenab Valley's Bhaderwah in Jammu on Friday.

Hundreds of local people had held demonstrations in Bhaderwah demanding action against a local journalist for his alleged objectionable remarks. The protests caused tension between communities, forcing authorities to impose the curfew "as a precautionary measure". Internet services also remained suspended in Bhaderwah.

Street protests and a spontaneous shutdown in the Kashmir Valley affected normal life. Protests were held after Friday prayers in parts of the Valley, including Srinagar. Officials said security was beefed up in the volatile localities in Srinagar. However, no violence was reported during the protests and most of the demonstrators dispersed peacefully.

Heavy security was deployed in Delhi after about 300 people gathered outside Jama Masjid carrying placards and shouting slogans against Ms. Sharma and Mr. Jindal.

In tense Kanpur, many friendships stay strong

June 3 violence has done nothing to diminish regard between Hindus and Muslims, say residents

NIKHIL M. BABU
KANPUR

Anil Sharma, 19, was working in a shop that makes garments near Yateem Khana of Kanpur when he heard about the violence on June 3, triggered by the controversial remarks on Prophet Muhammed made by the suspended BJP spokesperson Nupur Sharma.

"I was the only Hindu in the shop. The others are Muslims. When we came to know the news, they told me not to worry and they will drop me at my house. We worked till 6 p.m. and, though it was peaceful, they insisted on dropping me home," said Mr. Sharma.

Sitting in 26-year-old Mohammad Shahnawaz's tea stall in Yateem Khana, Mr. Sharma said the incident has not affected his relationship with his Muslim friends, including Shahnawaz. "I still come here every other day."

Mr. Shahnawaz said he has customers from all communities and they continue to come to his shop.

Babri memories

Many people in Yateem Khana and Nai Sadak area of Kanpur said Hindus and Muslims live together in the area. The violence was only between a small section from the two communities.

"All this doesn't matter to us," said Narayan Prasad Mishra, 74, about his relationship with Muslims, including Laiq Ahmed, 52, who runs a workshop near his own shop. "We are four shops away and still see each other every day," said Mr. Mishra.

The area where the violence erupted on June 3 has a mixed population.

Both Mr. Mishra and Mr. Ahmed said that the incident reminded them of the Babri Masjid demolition in 1992. "At that time, both Hindus and Muslims had come out on the streets. In outer area, there were some deaths too," Mr. Ahmed said.

"But back then, it was a bigger issue and there was curfew for at least a week," said Sanjay Sahu, 53, who sells chai at Parade Chowk and was listening to the conversation.

Mohammad Asim, 50, who lives in Becon Ganj, a Muslim dominated area close to Nai Sadak, said the situation had changed after the Babri Masjid demolition. "Earlier, even in our area there were a lot of Hindus. My best friend in school was a Hindu and we used to play cricket. But after Babri Masjid, Hindus started moving out," he said.

Divide and rule

"In 1989 and 1992, there was tension between Hindus and Muslims. I don't remember much, but there was tension," Mr. Mishra said.

After that, there was a violent incident between the two communities in 2000-2001, residents recall. Since then there has been peace.

"Whenever violence happens, there is some politics involved. Politicians divide Hindus and Muslims to rule over them. This is now being done for consolidation of Hindu votes, the way I see it," Mr. Asim said.

Rahul warns of Chinese hostility

The Narendra Modi government is betraying the country by ignoring the Chinese infrastructure build-up at the borders, former Congress chief Rahul Gandhi said on Friday. He added that the build-up pointed towards "future hostile action".

His remarks come just days after a U.S. General commented on the infrastructure development at the border. On Wednesday, General Charles A. Flynn, Commanding General, U.S. Army Pacific, said that the Chinese activities across Ladakh were "eye-opening".

Despite party diktat, Pragya Thakur backs Nupur Sharma

'India belongs to Hindus, Sanatana Dharma must stay here'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BHOPAL

BJP MP Pragya Singh Thakur aka Sadhvi Pragya on Friday backed Nupur Sharma, the former BJP spokesperson who was suspended by the party for her controversial remarks on Prophet Muhammed that sparked an international backlash.

On the response to Ms. Sharma's statement, Sadhvi Pragya – who is facing a trial in the 2008 Malegaon blast case and is currently out on bail – said, "These non-believers have always done so. They have a communist history... Kamlesh Tiwari said something and he was killed. Another person [Nupur Sharma] said something and got threat."

Pragya Singh Thakur

Earlier, Ms. Thakur also posted a tweet in support of her suspended party colleague. "If speaking truth is an act of rebellion, then I am a rebel myself," said the tweet.

Speaking to the pressperson, Ms. Thakur said that there was a Shiva temple under the Gyanvapi Mosque and that's how it would remain. She further added that India belonged to the Hindus and that Sanatana Dharma must stay here. "Muslims and non-believers give statement against our [Hindu] gods... How can we tolerate such insult?" she said.

These statements come even as the central leadership of the BJP, following the massive uproar over the Nupur Sharma incident, has reportedly asked its leaders to refrain from criticising any religion.

Russia delivers more efficient nuclear fuel for Kudankulam

After the next refuelling, the reactor will start operations in an 18-month fuel cycle, according to Rosatom State Corporation

DINAKAR PERI
SUDHAKAR P.
NEW DELHI/TIRUNELVELI

Rosatom State Corporation of Russia has supplied the first batches of more reliable and cost-efficient nuclear fuel over the existing one, the TVS-2M nuclear fuel, to India for the Units 1 and 2 of Kudankulam Nuclear Power Plant (KNPP), the company said in a statement on Friday.

Once the new TVS-2 M fuel is used in the next refuelling, the reactor will start operations with an 18-month fuel cycle. It means the reactor, which has to be stopped for every 12 months for removing the spent fuel and inserting the fresh fuel bundles and allied maintenance, will have to be stopped for every 18 months.

"Thus, TVEL has fulfilled the agreement with Nuclear Power Corporation of India Limited (NPCIL) on implementation of a comprehensive engineering project, including introduction of TVS-2M nuclear fuel and elongation of the fuel cycle from 12 to 18 months for both VVER-1000 reactors," it stated.

Compared to the current fuel model, the TVS-2M fuel assemblies have a number of advantages making them more reliable and cost-efficient, according to Rosatom. Firstly, it is the rigidity of a bundle. Because of the welded frame, the fuel assemblies in the reactor core retain their geometry. The spacer grids protect the fuel rod cladding from fretting wear and the additional spacer grid makes the fuel assemblies more vibration-resistant.

The economic efficiency of Kudankulam nuclear project is set to increase due to the longer fuel cycles. • A. SHAIKMOHIDEEN

Secondly, the new fuel has increased uranium capacity – one TVS-2M assembly contains 7.6% more fuel material as compared to the earlier fuel bundles. In addition, the special feature of the Kudankulam fuel in particular is the new generation anti-debris filter protecting bundles from debris damage, which may be caused by small-sized objects in the reactor core, the statement explained.

Operation in longer fuel cycles also enhances the economic efficiency of a plant: As reactors have to undergo stoppage and refueling less frequently, the power units can produce more electricity. Besides, the plant needs to buy less fuel, and as the result, has to deal with smaller amounts of spent fuel.

Russia is building the KNPP under an Inter-Governmental Agreement (IGA) of 1988 and follow on agreements in 1998 and 2008. The first stage, consisting of power units No. 1 and No. 2, was commissioned in 2013 and 2017, respectively. Power units No. 3, 4 and No. 5, 6 are are currently under construction.

RS poll vote counting halted in Maharashtra over objections

BJP alleges three MLAs had shown their ballot papers to polling agents

ALOK DESHPANDE
MUMBAI

In what turned out to be a day of twists and turns, the results of the fiercely contested election for six Rajya Sabha seats from Maharashtra were not declared till the time of writing this report as both ruling party and the Opposition having approached the Central Election Commission with complaints to declare votes of the opponent's side invalid.

The counting for the election was delayed for hours after BJP approached the Central Election Commission against the decision of Returning Officer (RO) in Maharashtra, who refused to cancel the votes of three MLAs of the MVA on a complaint by the BJP. The Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) too, by late evening approached Delhi, taking objection against the voting of BJP MLA Sudhir Mungantiwar and BJP-backed-independent MLA Ravi Rana over identical reasons.

Seven candidates are in the fray for six seats from Maharashtra with BJP staking claim on three seats while the MVA fielded four candidates. The battle for the sixth seat is between Sena's Sanjay Pawar and BJP's Dhananjay Mahadik.

BJP MLAs Parag Alvani and Atul Save, who were the party's polling agents inside the polling center, had objected that NCP MLA Jitendra Awhad, Congress' Yashomati Thakur and Shiv Sena'Suhas Kande violated the polling procedure by displaying ballot papers to persons other than their own party election agents. The RO, however, had rejected the BJP's objection.

"We will approach the Central Election Commission as the RO did not even hold the hearing of our complaint," Mr. Alvani had said. The party's complaint to CEC delayed the start of the counting of votes by more than two hours. Congress MLA and minister Aslam Sheikh said that the BJP's action is out of fear of losing.

MVA suffered a shock after the court refused to grant permission to two of the jailed MLAs of NCP, namely Nawab Malik and Anil Deshmukh, to vote for the election. With death of one of the Sena MLAs, the ruling MVA was already facing the tough task of achieving the quota of 42.

Earlier in the day, all four parties ensured that the MLAs who had been kept at the hotels and resorts for last three days were brought to the legislative building in specially arranged buses. NCP MLA Dattatraya Bharne was the first voter and as per the strategy, all three parties of the MVA voted turnwise.

2 AIMIM MLAs vote for Cong. in Maharashtra

SHOUMOJIT BANERJEE
PUNE

Two Maharashtra MLAs of the All India Majlis-E-Ittehadul Muslimeen (AIMIM) voted for the 'Maha Vikas Aghadi' coalition in the Rajya Sabha polls on Friday. The AIMIM, which has often been accused by the MVA leadership – particularly the Shiv Sena – of being the BJP's 'B-team', said it voted for the Congress's candidate in order to defeat the BJP.

Before the polling, Imtiaz Jaleel, the AIMIM's lone MP in Maharashtra, said that while his party's "political and ideological differences with the Sena" would remain, the party's MLAs would cast their votes for the Congress candidate Imran Pratapgarhi.

Despite the AIMIM's justification of going with the MVA to keep the BJP at bay, their decision raised eyebrows as their votes constituted 'excess' Congress votes (42 being the quota, Congress having 44 MLAs).

Congress takes 3 out of 4 seats in Rajasthan; media baron loses

Surprisingly, a BJP MLA cross-voted for the ruling party

The ruling Congress on Friday won three of the four Rajya Sabha seats from Rajasthan, with the party candidates Randeep Surjewala, Mukul Wasnik and Pramod Tiwari declared elected after counting of votes. BJP's Ghanshyam Tiwari won the fourth seat, while BJP-backed Independent, media baron Subhash Chandra, was defeated.

All the 200 MLAs cast their votes in the State Assembly building by the afternoon, but one vote was found invalid during the counting. The Congress and independent MLAs supporting the party were sequestered at a resort near Udaipur for about a week for their ostensible protection from poaching, while the Opposition BJP legislators went to a camp near Jaipur for training. Each candidate required 41 first-preference votes for victory. Mr. Surjewala secured 43 votes, Mr. Wasnik 42 and Mr. Tiwari 41. BJP's Mr. Ghanshyam Tiwari got 43 votes, while Mr. Chandra could poll only 30 votes. The Congress, which has 108 members in the Assembly, received the support of all the 13 independents as well as the MLAs of smaller parties. The BJP has 71 MLAs.

BJP MLA from Dholpur, Shobharani Kushwah, sprang a surprise by cross-voting in favour of a Congress candidate. Ms. Kushwah affirmed that she went against her party by listening to her "voice of conscience".

The six BSP-turned-Congress MLAs cast their votes, rejecting a whip issued by BSP State president Bhagwan Singh Baba directing them not to vote for either candidates. They had expressed resentment with the Congress government last week, but later relented after meeting the CM.

JD(U) leader loses Patna bungalow

AMARNATH TEWARY
PATNA

After being denied Rajya Sabha re-nomination, Bihar JD(U) leader and Union Minister R.C.P. Singh now has to vacate his spacious bungalow in Patna, where he has been living for the last 12 years. Once a close confidante of CM Nitish Kumar, Mr. Singh is believed to have fallen from grace after he joined Narendra Modi's Cabinet in July 2021.

Mr. Singh was dropped from the list of JD(U) for renomination to the Rajya Sabha. The party announced name of Jharkhand State president Khiru Mahto instead.

Mr. Kumar, said party sources, was upset with Mr. Singh for joining the Union Cabinet despite his displeasure and eventually both leaders fell out.

Mr. Singh was living in 7, Strand Road, close to Nitish Kumar's official residence, 1, Anne Marg, though it was officially allotted to the CM's close aide, Sanjay Gandhi.

Mr. Singh had said there were no differences between him and his party leader.

Islamists' stir in Bangladesh putting pressure on Hasina

Shadow cast over her planned visit to India this year

KALLOL BHATTACHERJEE
DHAKA

The show of strength by the Islamists of Bangladesh at Baitul Mokarram or the national mosque here on Friday against the controversial comments on the Prophet has highlighted the mounting challenge against Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina who will face an election in 2023.

Sheikh Hasina

The protesters heckled and threatened the religious figures associated with the ruling Awami League with the party leaders receiving phone calls from many police stations across the country about public protests against the comments made by two former BJP leaders. Officials and party insiders here maintain that these developments are casting a shadow on PM Hasina's planned visit to India later this year.

"I went to offer my prayer at the Baitul Mokarram, but the aggressive crowd inconvenienced me and I was forced to offer namaz in a separate enclosure. Pressure is mounting on PM Hasina to take a clear stand on this matter. The budget session of our Parliament is underway and a statement in the Parliament will calm public sentiments," said Khandakar Golam Maula Nakshbandi, an influential leader of the Awami League.

Exchange of high-level visits has been a key feature of Prime Minister Narendra Modi's 'Neighbourhood first' policy. In case of Bangladesh, since 2019, top level visits from both sides were shadowed by India's "internal" developments. In March 2020, PM Narendra Modi was scheduled to participate in the centenary celebrations of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman. The preparation for the mega event in Dhaka coincided with the enactment of the CAA on December 10, 2019. The act aimed to provide Indian citizenship to members of the persecuted minority communities of Pakistan, Bangladesh, and Afghanistan. As Dhaka felt deep discomfort because of the CAA, the Hasina government cancelled the events citing the threat of COVID-19 after reportedly being warned about the pandemic's ferocity by her intelligence team.

Mr. Modi's rescheduled visit to Dhaka for the Mujib centenary events finally took place in March 2021 and next is the turn of PM Hasina to visit India. Sources here maintain that they are not finding any 'hint' of the visit as of now.

"She is most likely to club her India-visit with the trip to the U.S. in September when she will attend the UN General Assembly. Or she may visit India after that," said an official hinting that Dhaka would prefer to schedule a visit only after the storm is over.

BJP and Cong. spar in Haryana too

BJP wants to defeat free and fair polls, says Congress RS candidate Ajay Maken

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI

The Congress on Friday accused the BJP of trying to defeat the process of free and fair election to Rajya Sabha in Haryana and demanded that the Election Commission declare the poll results in the State immediately.

A delegation of Congress leaders comprising Pawan Kumar Bansal, Vivek Tankha and Ranjeet Ranjan met the Election Commission and handed over a memorandum by Ajay Maken, its candidate for the Rajya Sabha poll in the State.

A BJP delegation of Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi, Gajendra Singh Shekhawat and Jitendra Singh after meeting EC officials. • PTI

Party leaders Bhupesh Baghel, Bhupender Singh Hooda, P Chidambaram and Randeep Surjewala joined the meeting with the EC virtually and raised their objections over the alleged delay in declaring the results, soon after a delegation of BJP leaders questioned the poll process in Haryana..

Congress' Rajya Sabha candidate for Haryana Ajay Maken urged the Chief Election Commissioner to declare the results after rejecting the "frivolous" objection by the BJP over alleged violation of the secrecy of the ballot. In his letter to Chief Election Commissioner (CEC) Rajiv Kumar, Maken has alleged "unwarranted and illegal interference" by Independent candidate Kartikeya Sharma and the BJP in the election process.

Mr. Maken alleged they have raised frivolous objection before the Returning Officer with the sole agenda to "defeat the process of free and fair elections".

Tenure of NATGRID CEO curtailed: MHA

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) has curtailed the tenure of the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of the National Intelligence Grid (NATGRID) and moved him to the Border Security Force (BSF).

The move comes months before the Central deputation of Ashish Gupta, Indian Police Service officer of the Uttar Pradesh cadre comes to an end in September.

A Home Ministry official said nothing much should be read into the order as Mr. Gupta had served eight years in the NATGRID and his tenure is coming to an end in September. The replacement for Mr. Gupta has not been finalised yet.

Earlier this year, Mr. Gupta was given an extension as NATGRID CEO as the post was upgraded to the rank of Additional Secretary. He is a 1989 batch IPS officer.

6 shooters identified in Moosewala's killing

STAFF REPORTER
NEWS DELHI

The Delhi Police Special Cell on Friday said that they have identified six shooters in connection with the murder of Punjabi singer Sidhu Moosewala, adding that his death was an "organised" and "brazen" killing.

Addressing a press conference, Special Commissioner of Police HS Dhaliwal said that the police had issued eight pictures of the suspects, out of which six shooters have been identified so far. "The singer's death was done in an organised and brazen manner," Mr. Dhaliwal added.

Mr. Dhaliwal said that of the eight shooters, the role of four in the killing of Moose Wala has been confirmed but the role played by the other four persons is so far "highly unlikely".

"The role of one Vikram Brar, against whom the Special Cell had issued a Look Out Circular earlier, has also surfaced and it has been revealed that he had provided shooters for the killing," he said.

He added that the recently arrested accused, Mahakal, an associate of the main shooter of Moosewala, in his interrogation has revealed that he had introduced shooters to the main perpetrator of the crime.

Gujarat fishermen at sea due to steep hike in fuel prices, big fall in catch

With an eye on polls, both the BJP and the Congress are reaching out to the affected community in the State

A.M. JIGEESH
MORBI/ VERAVAL

Abid, a mechanic on the coast of Veravel in Gujarat, earns his livelihood by servicing the boats of fishermen. He is now looking for other vocations in other cities as the fishermen are unable to pay him. "The sea has started drying up. There is no fish. So how will they pay me," he asks. His father was also a helper at the yard in Veravel.

The steep increase in diesel prices, freight cost that went up six times in two years and the dwindling fish production are creating a distress-like situation in the coastal belt of Gujarat, giving tough times for the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) ahead of the 2022 Assembly elections. This year, the BJP is trying to address the woes of fishermen and industries in the fishing sector ahead of the elections. The Congress is also equally engaged to improve its tally and is ready with a lot of promises to voters in the belt.

Market concerns

More than five lakh people are directly involved in the fisheries sector and Gujarat is the largest exporting State in terms of volume. Several processing units have been shut due to lack of orders from China and European markets. The president of the Seafood Exporters Association of India and a former Mayor of Veravel, Jagdish Fofandi, said there were market and fiscal concerns for the sector. Mr. Fofandi, a BJP activist, said the freight charges had increased six times.

"In aquaculture products, for the U.S. market, the rate increased from ₹15 to ₹70 a kilogram. Because of the increase, the fishermen are not getting adequate prices. We are also not getting our working capital as the payment is usually delayed for months. It is a major issue. Certain units have been forced to shut as Chinese markets have been closed due to COVID-19 restrictions. We do not have a favourable free trade agreement with the European Union. So countries such as Vietnam get the benefit of import tax concessions," he said.

Livelihood affected: Fishermen of Veraval in Gujarat have few opportunities to supplement their income. • VIJAY SONEJI

50% women workers

"Diesel price and high duty are the major issues here. There is no fishing industry without fishermen. They used to get subsidy in excise duties for the diesel they use in their boats and now it is very limited," said the Gujarat region president of the Seafood Exporters Association of India, Ketan C. Suyani. "About 50% of the workers are women. So any help to this sector is also a help to the women of Gujarat," Mr. Suyani said.

SPECIAL

The inland fishing too is in crisis due to decrease in prices. "For fishing backwater prawns, we use boats and if the water is shallow, we walk and do fishing. The season is limited to July, August and September. About 22,000 people of the Maliya-Miyana block are working in this mode of fishing. They do not get adequate price. For a box of 18-20 kilograms, they get ₹600. Since the season is short, middlemen are their only resource," said Ramesh Parmar, who works among inland fishermen in Morbi district.

BJP leader and Junagadh MP Rajesh Chudasama also agrees that both the industries and the fishermen are facing a lot of problems. "We have also asked the governments to address these concerns. These are policy issues. Another issue is that the production is down. We should make sure that juvenile fish are not caught. We are trying to educate fishermen about this," he said.

The Congress says the BJP did nothing to protect a segment that contributes a lot to the GDP of the State and the country. "We will include the problems of fishermen in our manifesto. They need a better cooperative system, rebate on excise duty and a minimum export price for what they catch," said Congress' Dwarka district president Yasin Gajan.

No tax on compensation for land taken for rail project: HC

NHSRCL had acquired land at Bhiwandi in Thane for bullet train project

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
MUMBAI

The Bombay High Court held that no income tax should be deducted on the compensation given for acquiring land in the Mumbai-Ahmedabad Hi-Speed Rail Project by the National Hi-Speed Rail Corporation Limited (NHSRCL) and steps should be taken to refund the amount.

A Division Bench of Justices S.V. Gangapurwala and M.G. Sewlikar, which passed the order on Thursday, was hearing a petition filed by Seema Patil. She is the owner of certain plots of land situated at Bhiwandi in Thane district and the NHSRCL acquired the land from her under an agreement and deducted income tax at the source from the compensation paid to her on October 23, 2019.

On or around May 8, 2020, a supplementary deed was entered between Ms. Patil and the NHSRCL under which some additional amount was paid to her and TDS amount was deducted. On or around December 4, 2020, Ms. Patil requested the company to reverse the TDS on the ground that no tax was deductible. After 20 days, the NHSRCL got back to her and said exemption from income tax is not applicable if land is acquired from Ms. Patil and it was duly deposited with the Income Tax Department.

The advocate appearing for Ms. Patil contended that the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act specifically exempts payment of income tax on an amount of compensation paid under the award and/or agreement. He said the NHSRCL ought not to have deducted the tax at source because it is applicable only where the amount is taxable in the hands of the recipient.

The counsel appearing for the NHSRCL argued that the amount received by Ms. Patil pursuant to an agreement is taxable as the acquisition is by an agreement between the parties. Hence, the income tax at source is deductible.

On June 9, the court held, "As the exemption under the Act would squarely apply, no income tax can be levied in the present matter for the amount of compensation, inter alia NHSRCL could not have deducted amount of tax deducted at source (TDS) from the amount of compensation paid to the petitioner. The company has already deducted the TDS which it ought not to have deducted."

The court thus directed steps to be taken to refund the amount in accordance with the provisions of Income Tax Act and Rules.

Former CAG pushes for more accountability in government

The data available is not properly auditable, says Mehrishi

DAMINI NATH
NEW DELHI

Retired Comptroller and Auditor General of India (CAG) Rajiv Mehrishi on Friday said that the CAG, the supreme audit institution of the country, did not even meet the standards of chartered accountants of private companies when it came to assurances.

Rajiv Mehrishi

Mr. Mehrishi said the CAG officials see only the accounts that government departments want them to see. He was addressing a conference on the digitisation of public expenditure organised by the George Washington University and Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation here.

"If you see the audit reports of CAG, we do not come up even to the insufficient standards of chartered accountants of private companies in the matter of assurance. We don't use the word assurance in our reports," Mr. Mehrishi said.

He said the CAG officials were faced with a strange situation where they were under pressure of time and the officers concerned said the "file is lost".

"That entire process is not auditable, so you get what the department wants to give... The way the accounts are, they are not properly auditable," he said.

The larger issue was that of the fundamental principle of Parliamentary democracy, that every rupee earned or spent had to be accounted for by the legislature. "Now, with the kind of data we have, Parliament can draw no assurances that every rupee is earned or spent is consistent with what they have approved," Mr. Mehrishi said.

The solution to the problem was not just digitisation, but "business process re-engineering". For example, he said, about 25% of the expenditure of several State governments was labelled as "other" expenditure. The data available was "obscure" and "error-ridden", he added.

Prominence given to Mughals at the cost of others, says Shah

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

Our history has been misrepresented, where prominence has been given to Mughals at the cost of empires like Pandyas, Cholas, Mauryas, Guptas and Ahoms, and now no one can stop us from rewriting it, said Union Minister for Home Affairs Amit Shah on Friday.

"Those who have distorted our history have done what they had to. But who can stop us? History is not written on the basis of the government, but on the basis of facts. Neither is history confined to history books, but spreads its own light," Mr. Shah said at the launch of a book titled, Maharana: Sahastra Varsha Ka Dharma Yuddha.

He said that it was time to stand with pride in front of the world, and after several decades our culture is beginning to receive global acceptance.

"Historians have only discussed the Mughal rule. The Pandya empire ruled for 800 years. The Ahom empire ruled Assam for 650 years. They (Ahoms) defeated Bakhtiyar Khalji, Aurangzeb and kept Assam sovereign. The Pallava empire ruled for 600 years. The Cholas ruled for 600 years. The Mauryas ruled the whole country – from Afghanistan to Sri Lanka for 550 years. The Satvahanas ruled for 500 years. The Guptas ruled for 400 years. But there is no reference book on them," he said.

He appealed that India's glorious history must be brought forward so that gradually the history "we think is wrong will fade away and the truth will be known."

He asked why was it that many people had heard of the Battle of Haldighati, but not many knew of the Battle of Dewair. Neither is victory or loss in a battle the basis of history, but the outcome of such an incident is, Mr. Shah said.

Any study on 'racial purity' harmful, say historians

They write a joint letter to Ministry of Culture

JACOB KOSHY
NEW DELHI

Over a 100 leading biologists, historians, anthropologists and intellectuals have written a joint letter to the Ministry of Culture protesting its purported plans to fund a project to study "genetic similarities and differences in the DNA (genetic) profiles of Indian population groups."

Last month, media reports surfaced of a plan involving the Anthropological Survey of India, some scientists at the Lucknow-based Birbal Sahni Institute of Paleo sciences (BSIP) and prominent archaeologist, Vasant Shinde, a former director of the Deccan College Postgraduate and Research Institute.

The report said the plan was to procure the latest DNA sequencing equipment for "establishing the genetic history and trace the purity of races in India".

The report quoted Mr. Shinde as saying the project aimed to study the "process of genetic mutation and mixing in Indian population over the last 10,000 years."

Mr. Shinde, now an Adjunct Professor at the National Institute of Advanced Studies, Bengaluru, and who led archaeological expeditions to trace the history of late-Harappan-era skeletons at Rakhigarhi, Haryana, following an uproar over the news report, said that his statement was "twisted and fabricated."

The Ministry of Culture too tweeted that the reports were incorrect and that the project wasn't related to establishing the "genetic history of races."

In their letter, the academics said that while it was "welcome" the government had disassociated itself from such a project, it was necessary to have "public disavowals" of any present or future project related to race, especially involving studying racial purity.

The concept of biological races was discarded long ago, the letter notes. The term "race" was invented as part of the effort to classify humans into distinct groups based on physical features such as bone structure and skin colour, and social characteristics such as faith and religion. It was assumed that the groups were somehow "natural", or that they had a meaningful biological basis.

However, in terms of the genes that make up individual biological inheritance, all human beings, irrespective of where they come from, share the same "gene pool." Most gene-based distinctions occur within so-called races, not between races and subsequent studies have only reinforced the strength of that conclusion, their letter notes.

Human history is replete with examples of horrible injustice – denial of benefits or even persecution - meted out to "less pure" groups by "more pure" groups. Racial stereotyping of humans has been discarded, and there should be no attempt to revive the concept in India, they note.

Divya Dampati

The Visishtadvaita tradition considers the Divya Dampati, Lord Narayana and His consort Sri, always inseparable. Ramanuja derives the basic principles of this tradition from Alavandar, who inherited it from his grandfather, Sage Nathamuni. In his hymn the Stotra Ratna, Alavandar pays obeisance to the two great sages, Parasara, the composer of Vishnu Purana, and Nammazhwar, whose Tiruvaimozhi is held to be the very essence of the Vedas. He claims that both of them have been blessed with the direct perception of the essence of the truths about the chit, the achit and Ishwara, and have inspired him, pointed out Asuri Sri Madhavachariar in a discourse. They explain that the Divine Couple enjoy equal status and identical power in all respects of swaroopa and swabhava.

If the Lord is all pervading, Pirati too is equally so. Both have the authority to grant moksha and when the prapanna does saranagati, the request for moksha is directed to both of them who are seen as a single entity. Parasara also says that just as word and meaning cannot be delinked, and so sabda and artha always go together, so too Vishnu as sabda and Pirati as vak are integral.

This idea is echoed by Kalidasa who pays obeisance to Parvati and Parameswara, who are always together like vak and artha. Both the Lord and Pirati are bound by the dharma to punish the erring jivatmas and forgive them when they repent sincerely. Sita says she is on a par with the Lord in this regard in the Sundara Kanda. She tells Ravana she can punish him and reduce him to ashes if she willed. She also advises him to repent for his sins of not only separating her from Rama but also because he covets her. She says he can approach Rama as a friend and ask for forgiveness.

Won't rule out war over Taiwan: China

Chinese Defence Minister meets U.S. counterpart, says Beijing will destroy 'Taiwan independence' plot

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
SINGAPORE

Beijing will "not hesitate to start a war" if Taiwan declares independence, China's Defence Minister warned his U.S. counterpart on Friday, the latest salvo between the superpowers over the island.

The warning from Wei Fenghe came as he held his first face-to-face meeting with U.S. Defence Secretary Lloyd Austin on the sidelines of the Shangri-La Dialogue security summit in Singapore.

Beijing views self-ruled Taiwan as its territory and has vowed to one day seize the island, by force if necessary, and U.S.-China tensions over the issue have soared in recent months.

Mr. Wei warned Mr. Austin that "if anyone dares to split Taiwan from China, the Chinese Army will definitely not hesitate to start a war no matter the cost", Defence Ministry spokesman Wu Qian quoted the Minister as saying during the meeting.

The Chinese Minister vowed that Beijing would "smash to smithereens any 'Taiwan independence' plot and resolutely uphold the unification of the motherland", according to the Chinese Defence Ministry.

He "stressed that Taiwan is China's Taiwan... Using Taiwan to contain China will never prevail", the Ministry said.

Mr. Austin "reaffirmed the importance of peace and stability across the (Taiwan) Strait, opposition to unilateral changes to the status quo, and called on (China) to refrain from further destabilising actions toward Taiwan", according to the U.S. Department of Defense.

Tensions over Taiwan have escalated in particular due to increasing Chinese aircraft incursions into the island's air defence identification zone (ADIZ).

U.S. President Joe Biden, during a visit to Japan last month, appeared to break decades of U.S. policy when, in response to a question, he said Washington would defend Taiwan militarily if it is attacked by China.

The White House has since insisted its policy of "strategic ambiguity" over whether or not it would intervene has not changed.

Japanese warning

With concerns mounting over China-Taiwan tensions, Japanese Prime Minister Fumio Kishida issued a stark warning at the summit: "Ukraine today, may be East Asia tomorrow".

The world must be "prepared for the emergence of an entity that tramples on the peace and security of other countries by force or threat without honouring the rules," he said.

He did not mention China, but repeatedly called for the "rules-based international order" to be upheld.

Mr. Austin is the latest senior U.S. official to visit Asia as Washington seeks to shift its focus back to the region from the Ukraine war.

Capitol riot panel blames Trump for 'attempted coup'

Aides' testimonies contend that his 'lies' led to the attack

ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON

The House panel investigating the January 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol has laid the blame firmly on Donald Trump, saying the assault was not spontaneous but an "attempted coup" and a direct result of the defeated President's effort to overturn the 2020 election.

With a never-before-seen 12-minute video of extremist groups leading the deadly siege and startling testimony from Mr. Trump's most inner circle, the committee provided gripping detail on Thursday night in contending that Mr. Trump's repeated lies about election fraud and his public effort to stop Joe Biden's victory led to the attack and imperilled American democracy.

"Democracy remains in danger," said Representative Bennie Thompson, D-Mississipi, chairman of the panel, during the hearing. "January 6 was the culmination of an attempted coup, a brazen attempt, as one rioter put it shortly after January 6, to overthrow the government," Mr. Thompson said. "The violence was no accident."

'Public record'

The hearings may not change Americans' views on the Capitol attack, but the panel's investigation is intended to stand as its public record. Before this fall's midterm elections, and with Mr. Trump considering another White House run, the committee's final report aims to account for the most violent attack on the Capitol since 1814, and to ensure such an attack never happens again.

Testimony on Thursday showed how Mr. Trump desperately clung to his own false claims of election fraud, beckoning supporters to the Capitol on Jan. 6, 2021, when Congress would certify the results, despite those around him insisting Biden had won the election.

In a previously unseen video clip, the panel played a remark from former Attorney General Bill Barr, who testified that he told Mr. Trump the claims of a rigged election were not correct.

In another clip, the former President's daughter, Ivanka Trump, testified to the committee that she respected Mr. Barr's view that there was no election fraud. "I accepted what he said."

Others showed leaders of the extremist Oath Keepers and Proud Boys preparing to storm the Capitol to stand up for Mr. Trump. One rioter after another told the committee they came to the Capitol because Mr. Trump asked them to.

"President Trump summoned a violent mob," said Rep. Liz Cheney, Republican from Wyoming, the panel's vice-chairman. "When a President fails to take the steps necessary to preserve our union – or worse, causes a constitutional crisis – we're in a moment of maximum danger for our republic."

Pence 'deserves it'

There was a gasp in the hearing room when Ms. Cheney read an account that said when Mr. Trump was told the Capitol mob was chanting for Vice-President Mike Pence to be hanged for refusing to block the election results. Mr. Trump responded that maybe they were right, that he "deserves it."

The riot left more than 100 police officers injured. At least nine people, who were there, died.

Ukraine launches air strikes on Russian targets in Kherson

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
LYSYCHANSK

Ukraine said on Friday it had launched new air strikes on Russian positions in the captured southern region of Kherson as President Volodymyr Zelensky insisted Kyiv's forces were "holding on" in the east of the country.

Ukraine is trying to carry out a counterattack in Kherson, one of the first areas to be taken by Russia after the February 24 invasion, as Kyiv's troops struggle in the eastern Donbas region.

Russian President Vladimir Putin meanwhile compared his current actions to Peter the Great's against Sweden 300 years ago, saying the tsar "wasn't taking anything, he was taking it back".

'Cities are holding on'

Mr. Zelensky said in his evening address on Thursday that several "cities in Donbas, which the occupiers now consider key targets, are holding on".

He added that Ukrainian forces have made positive strides in the Zaporizhzhia and Kharkiv regions outside Donbas, and are in the process of "liberating our land".

Ukraine's Defence Ministry said on Friday it had struck Russian military positions in Kherson, which is just north of the Crimean peninsula that was annexed by Russia in 2014, and among the first regions seized by Russia in February.

'100 to 200 Ukrainian soldiers get killed daily'

ASSOCIATED PRESS
KYIV

Up to 200 Ukrainian soldiers are being killed every day in Russia's military onslaught, according to an adviser to Ukraine's President – and only more and more advanced Western weaponry will turn back the Russian offensive, reduce the casualties and force Moscow to the negotiating table.

Mykhailo Podolyak told the BBC, in an interview aired on Thursday, that the daily loss of between 100 and 200 Ukrainian soldiers is the result of a "complete lack of parity" between Ukraine and Russia, which has "thrown pretty much everything non-nuclear at the front" in its bid to advance in Ukraine's eastern Donbas region and beyond.

Recently Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky put the daily death toll at up to 100, but Mr. Podolyak said it had grown.

Ukrainian officials have demanded for more Western weapons.

Musharraf hospitalised in Dubai, says family

Denies reports he was on ventilator

ASSOCIATED PRESS
DUBAI

Pakistan's former military ruler General Pervez Musharraf is critically ill and has been hospitalised in Dubai since last month, his family said on Friday. They denied media reports that he was on a ventilator.

Gen. Musharraf has been living in the United Arab Emirates since 2016, when he was allowed to leave Pakistan on bail to seek medical treatment abroad. A death sentence against him, handed down in absentia in 2020 in a treason case related to the state of emergency that Gen. Musharraf imposed in 2007 while in power, was later overturned.

Over the years, the former ruler was said to be very ill and was unlikely to travel home to face the sentence. Friday's statement from his family, posted on Twitter, followed newspaper reports in Pakistan and statements attributed to his friends saying he was gravely ill.

Pervez Musharraf

"He is not on the ventilator. Has been hospitalised for the last 3 weeks due to a complication of his ailment," Gen. Musharraf's family said, adding that he has been suffering from amyloidosis, a chronic metabolic disease in which abnormal proteins build up and damage organs such as the heart, kidney and liver.

"Going through a difficult stage where recovery is not possible and organs are malfunctioning. Pray for ease in his daily living," the tweet added.

U.S. lifts COVID testing for incoming fliers

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
WASHINGTON

The United States on Friday announced that COVID-19 tests would no longer be demanded for international travellers arriving by air, a major step in the country's gradual lifting of pandemic restrictions.

White House Assistant Press Secretary Kevin Munoz confirmed the news on Twitter, with U.S. media saying the testing requirement would end this weekend after strong lobbying from the travel industry.

All passengers were required to show a negative COVID-19 viral test taken shortly before travel – or proof of having recovered from the virus in the past 90 days – before they boarded their flight.

Last month, the country crossed the threshold of one million COVID-19 deaths, with President Joe Biden acknowledging the "unrelenting" pain of bereaved families.

Shanghai to lock down millions again for mass COVID testing

Move comes 10 days after two-month lockdown was lifted

SHANGHAI/BEIJING

China's commercial hub of Shanghai will lock down millions of people for mass COVID-19 testing this weekend – just 10 days after lifting its gruelling two-month lockdown – unsettling residents and raising concerns about the business impact.

Racing to stop a wider outbreak after discovering a handful of community cases, including a cluster traced to a popular beauty salon, authorities have ordered PCR testing for all residents in 14 of Shanghai's 16 districts over the weekend.

Five of the districts said residents would not be allowed to leave their homes while the testing was carried out. A notice issued by Changning district described the stay-home requirement as "closed management" of the community being sampled.

The latest scare triggered a rush to grocery stores and online platforms to stock up on food, as users of China's Twitter-like Weibo expressed fear they could be locked down for longer, having only started going back to work after the last lockdown was lifted on June 1.

Some areas had remained sealed off or quickly returned to lockdown due to infections and their close contacts.

While China's infection rate is low, President Xi Jinping has doubled down on a zero-COVID policy that authorities say is needed to protect the elderly and the medical system, even as other nations try to live with the virus.

Mainland China reported 151 COVID-19 cases for June 9, of which 45 were symptomatic and 106 were asymptomatic, the National Health Commission said on Friday.

Meanwhile, oil prices slipped on Friday but remained within touching distance of three-month highs as fears over the lockdown measures outweighed solid demand for fuels in the U.S., the world's top consumer.

Fitch upgrades India's outlook to stable citing 'rapid' recovery

Credit rating firm pares FY23 growth forecast to 7.8%, sees inflation at 6.9%

VIKAS DHOOT
NEW DELHI

Fitch Ratings raised India's rating outlook to 'stable' from 'negative' on Friday, citing fading downside risks to medium-term growth thanks to a rapid economic recovery and easing of weaknesses in the financial sector.

The credit rating firm has, however, lowered its GDP growth forecast for 2022-23 from 8.5% projected in March to 7.8% due to the impact of inflation on the growth momentum.

Despite near-term headwinds from the global commodity price shock, Fitch expects robust growth for India relative to similarly rated peers, but the country's public finances remain a credit weakness with the debt ratio broadly stabilising, based on its expectations of 'persistent large deficits'.

Slowed by prices: Fitch cites impact of inflation on growth momentum while paring its FY23 GDP forecast. • AFP

The firm affirmed India's long-term foreign currency issuer rating at 'BBB-' while revising the outlook, noting that this 'balances India's external resilience from solid foreign-exchange reserve buffers against some lagging structural indicators'. A BBB rating reflects low expectations of default risk with adequate capacity for payment of financial commitments, although adverse business or economic conditions are more likely to impair this capacity.

While high nominal GDP growth has facilitated a near-term reduction in India's debt-to-GDP ratio, Fitch sees the higher subsidies this year and the excise duty cuts on fuel to offset the surge in consumer prices would cost about 0.8% of GDP. This would push the fiscal deficit to 6.8% from the Budget target of 6.4%, despite robust revenues, it reckoned.

Rupee sinks to record low of 77.93 as oil, FPI outflows weigh

'Crude price rise fuels fears of global economic slowdown'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
MUMBAI

The rupee slid to a record low against the dollar on Friday amid demand for the U.S. currency from Foreign Portfolio Investors (FPIs) exiting the markets and oil firms needing to pay for costlier crude oil imports. The benchmark S&P BSE Sensex also fell 1,016.84 points, or 1.84%, to 54,303.44.

The rupee ended at 77.93, weakening 19 paise from Thursday's 77.74, which was the previous all-time low.

'China curbs rattle'

"The rupee has slumped to a new record low after a prolonged phase of consolidation as risk sentiments have soared amid concerns about acute price pressures and the reimposition of some lockdown restrictions in China," said Sugandha Sachdeva, vice president – Commodity and Currency Research, Religare Broking.

She said the rise in crude prices towards three-month highs owing to supply tightness was further accentuating inflation concerns and inflicting damage on the global economy.

On the equity side, stocks that lost the most on the BSE included Kotak Bank (3.96%), Bajaj Finance (3.9%), HDFC (3.8%), Reliance (3.02%), Wipro (2.99%) and Tech Mahindra (2.51%). The NSE Nifty 50 too slid 1.7% to 16,201.80.

"Rising inflation fears gripped the domestic market leading to heavy sell-off ahead of the release of U.S. inflation data and the Fed policy meet next week," said Vinod Nair, head of research at Geojit Financial Services. "Inflation data will be crucial to sense the quantum of a rate hike," he added.

Indian crude oil basket touches 10-year high

Indian basket hit $121.28 on June 9

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI

The basket of crude oil that India buys has hit a decade high of $121 per barrel, but retail selling prices of petrol and diesel continue to remain frozen. The Indian basket touched $121.28 on June 9 , matching levels seen in February/March 2012, according to data available from the Oil Ministry's Petroleum Planning and Analysis Cell (PPAC).

As per the PPAC, the Indian basket of crude oil averaged $111.86 per barrel between February 25 and March 29 – the period after Russia's invasion of Ukraine when oil prices soared.

It averaged $103.44 a barrel between March 30 and April 27.

International oil prices held near a 13-week high on Thursday, underpinned by robust demand. They, however, pared some gains on Friday, with Brent crude futures for August losing 81 cents to trade at $122.26.

India is 85% dependent on imports to meet its crude oil needs and so local pump rates are benchmarked against international prices.

Industrial output growth rose to 8-month high of 7.1% in April

Low base helped, mining output lower than expected: ICRA

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI

Industrial output expanded 7.1% in April, the fastest pace in eight months, on the back of improved performance by the power and mining sectors, as per government data released on Friday.

The manufacturing sector recorded growth of 6.3% in the first month of the current financial year, data on Index of Industrial Production (IIP) released by the National Statistical Office (NSO) showed. The earlier high for IIP growth was 13% recorded in August 2021.

However, the NSO added that growth rates over the corresponding period of the previous year were to be interpreted considering the unusual circumstances on account of the COVID-19 pandemic since March 2020.

"The low base of the second wave of COVID-19 bumped up the IIP growth to an 8-month high of 7.1% in April 2022, although it trailed our expectation (9.2%), led by a weaker-than-anticipated performance of mining," said Aditi Nayar, chief economist, ICRA

The power and mining sectors grew 11.8% and 7.8%, respectively, in April.

As per use-based classification, the capital goods segment recorded a growth of 14.7%, while consumer durables output expanded 8.5%.

Still, the weak showing of capital goods output relative to the pre-COVID level confirmed the view that the uptick in capacity utilisation in the fourth quarter of FY22 would not trigger a rapid private sector capacity expansion in light of the uncertainties generated by geopolitical developments, Ms. Nayar added.

U.S. inflation accelerates to almost 41-year high

May CPI quickens 8.6% on food, fuel

REUTERS
WASHINGTON

U.S. consumer prices accelerated 8.6% in the year through May, the largest annual increase since December 1981, as gasoline prices hit a record high and the cost of food soared. This suggests that the Federal Reserve could continue with its 50 basis points interest rate increases through September to combat inflation.

The inflation data also reflected a surge in rents, which increased by the most since 1990. The relentless price pressures are forcing Americans to change spending habits and will certainly heighten fears of an outright recession or a period of very slow growth.

"There's little respite...

until energy and food costs simmer down and excess demand pressures abate in response to tighter monetary policy," said Sal Guatieri, a senior economist at BMO Capital Markets. "The Fed might still raise policy rates 'just' 50 basis points next week, but it could easily ratchet up the pace beyond then if inflation keeps surprising," he added.

There are no plans to review the basic customs duty (BCD) levied on solar modules and cells, said Union Power Minister R.K. Singh. "I don't want any Chinese imports and want everything Made in India," said Mr. Singh.

Mr. Singh said as a result of the duty, the domestic manufacturing capacity of modules and cells had started going up.

SIAM Director General Rajesh Menon said recent government intervention would help ease supply side challenges, but a second increase in the repo rate and higher third party insurance rates could make it more challenging for consumers.

Visteon Corporation plans to more than double both revenue and headcount at its Indian operation, said president and CEO Sachin Lawande. The company also plans to set up a display panel unit.

The global player in the automotive 'cockpit' electronics space is also planning to ramp up localisation from the current 15% to 50% over the next few years. It is also scouting for a place to set up its second unit in the country.

Display plant is set to come up next to the existing facility in Chennai

"This year, we are planning to invest $20 million to set up a display panel facility adjacent to the existing plant in Chennai," said Mr. Lawande, speaking to reporters. "This will be the third plant after Portugal and Mexico to make one million units each globally. It would become operational by mid-2023," he added.

Asserting that the firm aimed to reach turnover of $500 million from Indian operations by 2027 – compared with $180 million in 2021 – he said that technical and manufacturing teams in India play a key role in developing and advancing cockpit electronics technologies such as AI, deep machine learning and cybersecurity.

To raise output capacity, Visteon proposes to double the Indian workforce to 3,000. The company has technical centres at Chennai, Bengaluru, Pune and Goa and new ones are coming up at Coimbatore and Thiruvananthapuram.

Anand slips to third spot

Viswanathan Anand made a queen-move when his rival Shakhriyar Mamedyarov was not around. He noted down the move and at once realised the decisive error he had committed.

He foresaw a two-move checkmate that Mamedyarov could deliver. The moment Mamedyarov returned to the board, Anand surprised him by resigning.

Such was the dramatic end to Anand's eighth-round clash in the Norway Chess at Stavanger on Thursday. The loss saw Anand (13 points) slip a rung to the third spot, behind leader Magnus Carlsen (15) and Mamedyarov (14.5).

The results: Eighth round: Viswanathan Anand (13/26.5) lost to Shakhriyar Mamedyarov (Aze, 14.5/26); Magnus Carlsen (Nor, 15/26.5) drew with Maxime Vachier-Lagrave (Fra, 12.5/26); Armageddon: Carlsen bt Vachier; Wesley So (USA,11/27) drew with Veselin Topalov (Bul, 8.5/27.5), Armageddon: Topalov; Anish Giri (Ned, 11/26) bt Aryan Tari (Nor, 8.5/26.5); Teimour Radjabov (Aze, 6.5/26.5) drew with Wang Hao (Chn, 6.5/27), Armageddon: Radjabov.

Disappointment for Mary Kom

Knee injury forces reigning Commonwealth Games champion to quit trials

BOXING

Y.B. SARANGI

Six-time World boxing champion M.C. Mary Kom had disappointment in store as she bowed out of the Commonwealth Games trials due to a knee injury on Friday.

On the first day of the trials held in New Delhi, Mary sustained a knee injury after a minute of her 48kg bout against two-time World youth champion Nitu Ghanghas.

Mary returned after receiving medical attention, but still experienced pain. She had to leave the ring in the first round itself as the referee stopped the contest and declared Nitu the winner on RSC-I. According to an eye witness, Mary struggled to even stand.

The 39-year-old reigning Commonwealth Games champion in 48kg is in the final phase of her amateur career as the current cutoff age is 40.

Nitu will meet World championships silver medallist Manju Rani in the final trial on Saturday.

In other important results, current Worlds bronze medallist Parveen beat another Worlds bronze medallist Simranjeet Kaur 4-3 in a 60kg bout and Olympics bronze medallist Lovlina Borgohain went past young challenger Ankushita Boro 7-0 in a 70kg fight.

PTI adds from New Delhi:

"I was training so hard for this. This is just bad luck, I have never had a knee injury before," said a distraught Mary Kom said as she limped towards her car to head to the hospital.

Mary Kom fell on the canvas while trying to dodge a punch in the first round. The 39-year-old tried to keep going after receiving medical assistance but after a couple of punches, she struggled to find her balance. She clutched her left knee and looked in a lot of pain.

"It is really unfortunate, but one can never predict such things. Mary had been training hard for this," said National coach Bhaskar Bhatt.

Didn't panic at all: van der Dussen

SA IN INDIA

RAKESH RAO
NEW DELHI

Smashing the last 126 runs off 55 deliveries to chase down the target of 212, Rassie van der Dussen (75 not out) and David Miller (64 not out) showed they were never intimidated by the task ahead. It was also equally true that seldom has a team scored as many in the last 10 overs in pursuit of a 200-plus target.

Talking to mediapersons late on Thursday, van der Dussen mentioned how the duo planned to use the shorter boundaries to bring down the climbing asking rate.

"We didn't panic at all. We knew even if the asking rate got up to 14-15, we could use that one short boundary with the right-left combination. We knew we could target the bowlers."

About his slow start, van der Dussen admitted, "I put myself and the team under a bit of pressure by not being able to get boundaries early on in my innings. You know, sometimes it just doesn't come off."

Asked about the dropped catch when on 29, he said, "When Shreyas dropped it, I knew I had to make them (India) pay because I took the balls to get myself in." Indeed, van der Dussen changed gears to find four sixes and five fours over the next 15 deliveries he faced to put the finishing touches to the chase.

Ishan Kishan, who top scored with a 76, revealed, "Initially, we knew the pitch was not easy to get going and would be tough for the batters coming in. My plan was to target the loose balls because you need to put pressure on the bowlers," he added.

"One needs to give respect to the good balls, Anrich Nortje and Kagiso Rabada are experienced bowlers. My plan was to keep them on the backfoot, keep playing my shots and force them to think about their line and length," he said.

Masterstroke: van der Dussen and Miller's plan to target the shorter boundaries paid rich dividends. • SPORTZPICS/BCCI

Mitchell, Blundell put NZ on top

Their unbroken 149-run stand takes Kiwis to 318 for four

NOTTINGHAM

Daryl Mitchell led the New Zealand charge as the visitors powered to 318 for four against England by close of play on the first day of the second Test on Friday.

Mitchell's aggressive 81 not out and an unbeaten 67 from Tom Blundell made England captain Ben Stokes pay for his decision to bowl first on a flat pitch.

England's wounds were mostly self-inflicted, with three dropped catches as the bowling and fielding flaws that plagued the host in recent months returned.

Williamson hit by Covid

World Test champion New Zealand, which lost a gripping first Test at Lord's, was without Covid-hit Kane Williamson after the skipper was ruled out on Thursday evening.

Despite Williamson's absence, the Kiwis punished some wayward England bowling, with Mitchell and Blundell amassing an undefeated 149-run partnership after Tom Latham and Will Young put on 84 for the first wicket. Stokes dismissed Young for 47 and, the very next ball, stand-in skipper Latham fell to James Anderson for 26. But New Zealand stayed positive, continuing to find the boundaries regularly as Devon Conway (46) and Tom Nicholls (30) kept the visitors on top.

Nicholls eventually edged Stokes to wicketkeeper Ben Foakes who also took the catch when Conway nicked one behind soon afterwards off Anderson.

India faces the formidable Afghanistan challenge

ASIAN CUP

AMITABHA DAS SHARMA
KOLKATA

India will be looking to consolidate its position in the league standings when it takes on a strong Afghanistan in the second round of the group D league fixtures of the AFC Asian Cup's final round qualification at the Salt Lake Stadium here on Saturday.

Having won the first round match against Cambodia comfortably (2-0), India is expected to have a difficult task in the second outing where it takes on a more formidable opposition in the Afghans.

Measuring the threat perception ahead of the match, the Indian head coach Igor Stimac felt the "winning attitude" of the Afghanistan side will be the biggest challenge for his side.

"Afghanistan will be coming out with a winning attitude which is based on the fact that many of their players have international football experience which is much higher than the level of ISL. They get their confidence from there," Stimac said.

India enjoys a much better head-to-head record with Afghanistan having won nine and lost just once in the 15 occasions the two sides have met (the rest five have been drawn). But Stimac's assessment of his opponent was largely based on the last two meetings where the Afghans seemed to be more dominant as India looked happy to be holding on to a draw.

"We have to be ready to take control of the ball and make the opponent run. It should not be a situation where we chase their players," Stimac said.

He hinted that he would be considering some changes in his side, looking at the strengths of the Afghans, but said he preferred a youthful side which can "play with speed and intensity."

SAI has now sought a report from the Federation by the end of the day, asking if the sailor had approached them earlier, and if so why the matter was not taken seriously.

"SAI has received a complaint from a female sailor that a coach made her uncomfortable during an exposure tour to Germany. She claimed that she had approached the federation earlier, but after getting no response, she knocked on SAI's doors," a source said.

Two new meet records were set on the opening day of the 61st SNJ-National inter-State athletics championships here on Friday. However, no athlete could make the cut either for the Commonwealth Games or the World Championships.

Long jumper M. Sreeshankar of Kerala set a new mark in the qualifying event with a jump of 8.01m, erasing Prem Kumar's 8.00m effort in 2013. Muhammad Anees Yahiya of Kerala came second 7.85m ahead of Jeswin Aldrin 7.71.

It was a good day for Tamil Nadu in women's pole vault as it bagged the top three positions with E. Baranica claiming gold with a new meet mark of 4.05m. Rosy Meena Paulraj and Pavithra Venkatesh finished second and third after clearing 4m, the old mark set by Khyati Vakharia in 2018.

Unsuccessful attempts

After clearing 4.05m, Baranica went for 4.10m which she couldn't clear in two attempts while giving a 'pass' to the third. She went for the jugular by going for the National record held by Surekha (4.15m, 2014) but failed again.

Sub-eight difficult but possible: Sable

'There is no need to train any differently, it is all about setting the right targets'

ATHLETICS

UTHRA GANESAN
NEW DELHI

It isn't often that a top-level athlete admits to losing years to a bad mistake. Avinash Sable has no qualms doing the same but is also in a hurry on making up for the lost years.

From a then-national record-breaking 8:29.80 in 2018 to aiming for a sub-eight minute time, Sable has come a long way in the four years since he first took up the event, breaking his own record seven times now. After an impressive 8:12.48 at the Diamond League in Rabat, he is now focusing on the World Championships and the Commonwealth Games.

"It is definitely not easy but I don't think it is impossible or there is need to train any differently for a sub-eight timing. It is all about setting the right targets," Sable said in a virtual interaction from Colorado Springs on Friday.

Getting future ready: Sable, in his first ever foreign training stint, is enjoying the atmosphere. • S. MAHINSHA

"In India, we only think of winning a race, getting a medal and a job or promotion. When I started, even 8:45 sounded good and you could get a medal even with a time of nine minutes!

Mindset

"There is also a mindset that foreign athletes are naturally or genetically gifted and we cannot compete with them but having done that here, I can say that is not true.

"Agar 9 minute soch ke 8:12 tak aa sakte hain to yahan se sub-8 to kar hi sakte hain (if we can cut to 8:12 from nine minutes, we can definitely go sub-8 from here)," he explained.

For someone considered among a handful of genuinely world-class Indian track & field athletes, the national 3000m Steeplechase champion, this is his first-ever foreign training stint and he rues the fact that he delayed travelling abroad for training for so long.

"I was first asked by (Late) coach Nikolai (Snesarev) to train abroad after I broke the national record for the first time at the 2018 Open Nationals but I did not agree. The AFI, SAI everyone planed foreign training for me, last year also before Tokyo Olympics they planned to send me to Uganda but I could not decide and I believe that was the biggest mistake of my life as an athlete," he admitted.

Immediately up next, though, is finding a good meet to participate in and go all out to test himself before the Worlds in July without bothering about results or targets.

Given his battles, the chances of another national record are high.
